

Annotated Images

Figure 1.

“Elizabeth Clarke Freake (Mrs. John Freake) and Baby Mary.” Worcester Art Museum. 1674/n.d.

Web. September 14, 2018. The painting “Elizabeth Clarke Freake (Mrs. John Freake) and Baby Mary” is a primary source held by Worcester Art Museum. It shows the plainness of Puritan life in terms of dress and ornament, and it also reveals the formal relationship between parents and children, which shows the severity of the age.

Figure 2.

"Iran." CultureGrams Online Edition. ProQuest, 2013. Web. 8 Oct 2013. “Iran” is a map from a reputable source, CultureGrams, which appears on the Cobb Digital Library. Based on research, the map accurately displays Iran and its bordering countries. Iran was known in ancient times as Persia; therefore, the map depicts the geographic region where Persian Cats originated, an important aspect of understanding Persian Cats.

Figure 3.

Cream Shaded Cameo Persian Longhaired Cat With Even Cream Shading And Copper Eyes.

Photography. Encyclopædia Britannica Image Quest. Web. 8 Oct 2013. Cream Shaded Cameo illustrates what Persian Cats look like. It is part of an Encyclopedia Britannica article that describes in detail the distinctive characteristics of Persian Cats. Providing a visual of the cat is important for the audience to understand what Persian Cats look like.