

Name: Captain Elijah Matthews

Age: 24

Personality: Despite his seemingly young age, Captain Matthews is a battle-hardened, and perhaps battle-weary, man. Having flown on the Eclipse for all of her seven years of service, he knows the ship and her crew better than anyone else. He's a very emotional leader who often thinks with his heart, trusting his more rational advisers to talk him down when he loses sight of the mission. His passionate nature makes him very charismatic and leads to his crew feeling a very strong sense of loyalty towards him.

Appearance: Light reddish skin, short brown hair with a single white streak on the right side near the front, pale green eyes. Wears a standard Assembly navy uniform comprised of a dark blue button up jacket with the right flap extending at a slight angle over the left, white dress pants, and black boots.

Background: Originally the Eclipse's second-in-command, he was promoted to become her captain in preparation for the war with the Resanti. Once an avid supporter of the Grand Assembly, his passion was quickly turned against it when the Assembly left Drasis to be destroyed. He used his charisma to convince most of the Eclipse's crew to stay on board and desert with him as he struck out to make his own way in the galaxy, away from the nation that had betrayed him.