

Backseat Cooking Ingredients List

Backseat Cooking 2025 Begins

Ingredients cost a reasonable amount as a donation.

What defines a reasonable amount is basically about 2x or more the cost of the ingredient, just about. It would be a bad idea to set this at like $20 because then if someone asked for me to pick up a filet mignon for it I'd be spending much more than I made, but if I set it to $50, then someone asking for rice would be waaaay overpaying.

There is however a floor of $10, so a single lemon still costs $10.

We'll basically be defining "dishes". I have one lined up for free, and if no one donates further for it I'll simply come up with something out of the ingredients I have available.

From here, the prices are thus. You don't have to hit them exactly if you want to overpay, that's cool too!!

$20 - Use an ingredient in a dish (This doesn't necessarily have to be ingredients from the list on the next page, feel free to ask at any point if I already have an ingredient.)

$50 - Override (Tell me No, Don't Do That - shoot down my ideas. You're not allowed to shoot down donated suggestions. You may suggest an alternative with override.)

$100 - Define cooking method (Basically, feel free to tell me something like "braise" or "bake" or "saute". "Deep fry" is viable from this point on. The only things you're not allowed to suggest is grill or smoke. If multiples are suggested I will do my best to either combine the ideas or cook in multiple steps.)

$420 Collectively - We add another dish! I'll cook up another one. Again, every time we reach this it's considered "blank" and I have free reign until people start telling me what to do with it. Donations during the ingredients phase do not contribute to this, this will only be counted up during the actual cooking.

$420 Individually - Of course, if I have all the stuff for it, you can also just tell me to make a recipe on the fly. Remember, I have only so much time available to do this and I'm not the fastest cook in the world, so keep your expectations low.

The Forbidden Sippy has returned, with the additional step of turning it into a cocktail. The Forbidden Sippy Jr. shall be five kinds of alcoholic highball.

INGREDIENTS LIST

Cranberries

“Fool’s Ham” (Dealer’s Decision What This Means)

Plain White Sandwich Bread

Tap Water

Butter

Flour

Powdered Milk

Black Cherry Carbonated Water

Birch Beer

Oatmeal

Butter Popcorn

Chickpeas

Cottage Cheese

Saffron

Deli Turkey

Dates

DISHES-in-PROGRESS