

2025 Banned Books Week | Social Media Messaging

Find us on:

Facebook: @littlefreelibrary

Instagram: @littlefreelibrary

Threads: @littlefreelibrary

Bluesky: @littlefreelibrary.bsky.social

LinkedIn: @little-free-library

TikTok: @littlefreelibrary

Facebook/LinkedIn

1)

It's Banned Books Week! Each year Little Free Library celebrates the freedom to read, and this year it feels more important than ever.

Expanding access to books is at the heart of Little Free Library's mission, and the rise in book bans in the United States goes against the organization's core values — especially when the bans overwhelmingly target BIPOC and LGBTQ+ authors. When these voices and perspectives are erased through book bans, our world becomes a less informed, less empathetic, and less inclusive place.

Share a banned book in a Little Free Library this week! Learn more about Banned Books Week:

<https://littlefreelibrary.org/about/book-bans/banned-books-week/>

#bannedbooksweek

[Tag Little Free Library]

2)

Did you know you can find Little Free Library book-sharing boxes using the Little Free Library mobile app? In the app, LFL stewards can indicate that they share banned books in their Little Free Libraries. More than 3,600 stewards are using this feature. Download the Little Free Library app to share a banned book in a Little Free Library near you in honor of Banned Books Week: <https://littlefreelibrary.org/app/>

Week: <https://littlefreelibrary.org/app/>

#bannedbooksweek

[Tag Little Free Library]

Instagram

It's Banned Books Week! As a Little Free Library [steward/patron/supporter/fan], I celebrate the freedom to read, and this year it feels more important than ever.

Expanding access to books is at the heart of Little Free Library's mission, and the rash of recent book bans in the United States goes against the organization's core values — especially when the bans overwhelmingly target BIPOC and LGBTQ+ authors. When these voices and perspectives are erased through book bans, our world becomes a less informed, less empathetic, and less inclusive place.

Share a banned book in a Little Free Library this week! Learn more about Banned Books Week at the link in my bio.

[add link to your Instagram bio: <https://littlefreelibrary.org/about/book-bans/banned-books-week/>]

#bannedbooksweek

[Tag Little Free Library]

Threads / Bluesky

1)

It's #BannedBooksWeek! I'm a proud Little Free Library [steward/patron/supporter/fan], and expanding access to books is at the heart of Little Free Library's mission. The rise in book bans in America goes against the organization's core values. So share a book in a #LittleFreeLibrary this week! Learn more: [add link:

<https://littlefreelibrary.org/about/book-bans/banned-books-week/>]

[Tag Little Free Library]

2)

In the #LittleFreeLibrary mobile app, LFL stewards can indicate that they share banned books in their Little Free Libraries. As of September 2025, more than 3,600 stewards are using this feature. Download the Little Free Library app to find #bannedbooks near you in honor of

#bannedbooksweek: <https://littlefreelibrary.org/app/>

[Tag Little Free Library]