

Name	Email	Suggested Items/Questions/Etc. for Discussion and Followup	Suggested Resources
Maureen O'Brien	obrien@duq.edu		Antiracism resource package from Theology faculty, University of Portland, Oregon, USA (a Catholic university founded by the Congregation of the Holy Cross): https://sway.office.com/lRNS3ETC2jxjGNAV?ref=Link&loc=play Black Catholic syllabus: https://tiapratt.com/blackcatholicssyllabus-2/
Chuck Chesnavage	cchesnavage@gmail.com , cchuck60@aol.com		Worship aid from "I Can't Breathe" service, St. Francis Xavier Church, New York City: https://d2y1pz2y630308.cloudfront.net/6829/documents/2020/6/Racial%20Justice%20Livestream%20prayer%20service%20PDF%206_14_20.pdf See folder, "St. Francis Xavier Resources." to access images
Tracey Lamont	tlamont@loyno.edu		A friend and colleague in Young Adult Ministry, Michael Bayer (out of Chicago) put together this resource: Catholic Resources for Racial Justice The folks at Wabash are doing webinars on contemporary issues (COVID and Racism right now)

			https://www.wabashcenter.wabash.edu/webinars/
Maureen O'Brien			Follow Mary Hess on Facebook for RE books related to racial justice--many written by REA members
Maureen			College Theology Society has developed an extensive list of antiracism resources; https://collegetheologysociety10.wildapricot.org/CTS-compiled-Resources-For-Anti-Racism-in-Theological-Education
			Icon, "Ferguson Mother of God," by Mark Dukes: http://www.requiemfor10000souls.com/mark-dukes-bio-page
Eileen Dailey	edailey@bu.edu		Boston Univ. Office of Lifelong Learning: www.bu.edu/sth/oll Arts, Religion and Culture: https://artsreligionculture.org/blog/2020/3/30/insights-eileen-dailey
Tracey Lamont		I came across this review of DiAngelo's White Fragility that I found very insightful. It is a very strong critical review, which I found quite compelling. There is strong support for Kendi's book as an alternative to DiAngelo's	https://www.washingtonpost.com/outlook/2020/06/18/white-fragility-is-real-white-fragility-is-flawed/

Tracey Lamont		This article I plan to use in my Foundations of RE this fall - he recounts how his theological education led him to feel that the popular religiosity of his family and his upbringing was more of an embarrassment. [Steffano is a member of REA and the Catholic COP.]	Steffano Montano (2020) Did My Religious Education Teach Me to Hate My Family's Religiosidad? An Autobiographical Analysis of My Religious and Theological Education, Religious Education, 115:1, 27-33, DOI: 10.1080/00344087.2020.1706231
		Steffano's other article inspired me to include racial identity development in any session I have on my youth and young adult ministry courses on faith and human development (D. Wing Sue has an article summing up his book- which I use)	Steffano Montano (2019) Addressing White Supremacy on Campus: Anti-Racist Pedagogy and Theological Education, Religious Education, 114:3, 274-286, DOI: 10.1080/00344087.2019.1603952
Tracey Lamont			Stephen Brookfield's new book, Teaching Race; Brookfield: "There are two ways to talk about race: badly or not at all."
Chuck Chesnavage		Essential connection of worship and justice	Centering Marginalized Voices, Rev. Tyler Sit, https://www.tandfonline.com/doi/full/10.1080/00344087.2020.1708169
Shannon Chishom	schisholm001@littpress.org		Layla Karst: https://mission.lmu.edu/ministry/liturgysacraments/mass/

Chuck Chesnavage			Check out june2020.org the Poor People's Campaign March On Washington that took place this past weekend and where you can probably find the links. It's about 3 hrs. in length.
Wayne Cavalier, O.P.	waycav@aol.com
Vanessa Rotondo	vrotondo@fordham.edu
Michael Kelly	m.kelly@ytu.edu.au	eucharistic liturgy in a pandemic	See J.P. Grayland in NZ and Thomas O'Loughlin in England also an article from Andrew Downie in La Croix (24/06/20)
John Falcone	john.p.falcone@gmail.com
Rito Baring	rito.baring@dlsu.edu.ph
Peter Gilmour	pgilmou@luc.edu	Interests in creative liturgical celebrations amid pandemic restrictions	Teilhard's "Mass on the World" in A Hymn to the Universe
Patrick Manning	manningpa@shu.edu

[illegible]