

Rompinpomps / DF43 Commission Form Details and Terms of Service 2025

The text here will detail what to expect from my commissions as well as terms and conditions on getting a commission from me. Please read carefully!

If you have any questions, do contact me at poodlecommquestions@gmail.com and I'll answer to the best of my ability!

NOTICE: With this new batch, how I do invoices will be changed! The first ten clients with valid forms will be contacted to iron out details in case of any minor issues with said form, then I will send the invoice before any work has commenced. Then for every commission completed I'll contact the next client.

Nothing will change about the rough sketch portion, if anything major or minor needs to be changed during that time then no extra fees will be added as per usual.

As always, be thorough with your form for the best results!

Form Details, Acceptance, Rejection, and Queue System

Please take your time when filling out the form in good detail, it is not a race! The better your form, the higher chance it will have to be accepted!

Accepted forms will get an email/message notifying you of acceptance, and I will ask how soon you would prefer to have the commission be done.

Rejected forms will also get an email/message back notifying you of what in the form needs changing, if you continue wanting a commission, so keep an eye out for that as well.

I reserve the right to reject any form at my discretion, be it disregarding the Dos and Don'ts section, not being a complete form, or simply because the subject matter isn't to my taste.

Commission order will be selected by a combination of order of appearance and quality of the form. This does NOT mean the form has to be wordy, just that it is a complete idea.

When your form is selected, I will link you a spreadsheet to show your position in the queue to give an idea on when I will contact you for more details and payment. Keep the link handy!

Extra Additions:

Extra fees may be added at my discretion based on the level of detail asked for the commission. This includes things like excess veinage, very detailed muscle striations, copious amounts of tattoos, etc.

- Excessively larger characters may require a higher fee on average for extra detail due to increased area to work with.
- Extra characters will also require an additional fee (exceptions being characters not fully drawn for macro pics or silhouettes, as an example). +100% per character at base, but may give discounts for half-sized/small characters depending. Extra characters have a maximum of 3, not including the base character.
- Alts are limited to 3 maximum. Extra cost depends on the severity of the changes done per alt. Alts like character growth with pose changing will typically be regarded as an extra character as far as pricing.
- Backgrounds more complex than simple shapes/colors will require an extra fee, percentage depending on complexity of the scene and objects needed to be made. Percentage will vary, so it'll be something we have to discuss.

To reiterate, the extras price percentages are determined by the descriptions and examples given to me by you! If you want a fair price, do be diligent with being as accurate with what you want as possible!

Edits:

You may ask me for any edits you need in the rough sketch stage of the commission until you are satisfied with the result. From then on you'll get one free edit before I consider charging for extra work done, depending on how severe the edit is.

This primarily applies to requesting changes to posing, or adding detail not previously mentioned. This does NOT apply to when I miss crucial character details (do be diligent to tell me early!) or very minor fixes.

Refunds:

Refunds will be given in full at the rough layout stage at the beginning, at any point after that I can refund half of the amount paid up till the completion of the piece. When the piece is completed, no refunds are to be given.

If you acquire a refund, you forfeit the right to any of the work done and shared so far and are not allowed to use it for any purpose.
