

Workshop Session #3 1:00-2:15

Workshop Title	The brighter future of addressing the shadows
Description	Access to technology is not always a matter of equity for Latino immigrants, especially in Title 1 schools. It may trigger feelings of immigration grief, inadequacy and resistance for parents. This talk is an invitation to think deeply and go beyond devices and curriculum programs. It holds one of the keys for effective Latino parent engagement in schools and community building.
Presenter Information	Michelle Remond is Redwood City School District's Community Liaison. She is part of the Department of Communications, providing input on cultural sensitivity, immigration grief and Latino mindset. On school sites she advocates for Spanish speaking parents guiding them on understanding the American public school system and collaborates on different levels of parent engagement. She has a BA in Communication with a Sociology major, a masters degree in History and is a Certified Grief Counselor. She migrated from Mexico to California on 2010.
