The screenshot displays the American Kennel Club's website interface for the Akita breed. The main heading is "Breed Traits & Characteristics". Below this, there are five tabs: "FAMILY LIFE", "PHYSICAL", "SOCIAL", "PERSONALITY", and "ALL TRAITS". The "FAMILY LIFE" tab is currently selected. Under this tab, there are several sections with sliders and descriptive text:

- AFFECTIONATE WITH FAMILY: A slider ranging from "Independent" to "Lovesy-Devotey". The text describes how affectionate a breed is likely to be with family members.
- GOOD WITH YOUNG CHILDREN: A slider ranging from "Not Recommended" to "Good With Children". The text discusses a breed's level of tolerance and patience with children.
- GOOD WITH OTHER DOGS: A slider ranging from "Not Recommended" to "Good With Other Dogs". The text explains how generally friendly a breed is towards other dogs.
- SHEDDING LEVEL: A slider ranging from "No Shedding" to "Hair Everywhere". The text mentions how much fur and hair a breed can expect to leave behind.
- COAT GROOMING FREQUENCY: A slider ranging from "Monthly" to "Daily". The text describes how frequently a breed requires bathing, brushing, and other kinds of coat maintenance.

On the right side of the page, there is a video thumbnail showing a person walking a dog. A "Feedback" button is visible in the bottom right corner.

German Shorthaired Pointer

1. German Shorthaired Pointer

- a. Key Descriptors: Friendly / Smart / Willing to Please

2. History

- a. In the late 1800s, the German aristocracy (highest class) joined with the rising middle class in the search for the perfect dog. They wanted a lot from this dog. This superlative animal had to be a great hunting dog, but not just a bird hunter or a deer hunter or a wolf hunter or even a boar hunter. This dog had to be able to hunt all the wild creatures that lived in the vast forests that covered the land that had just recently become Germany.
