

Welcome to the Simulation

Over the past day we have witnessed an interesting turn of events to say the least. Small commentator VexxSaysStuff was accused of grooming from three people. The community was sent into disarray and my little Twitter space conversation with friends blew up into dozens of people, including big commentators like Nicholas DeOrio, Bowblax and John Swan watching me and several others embarrassing ourselves by botching the incident. But while we were busy making fools of ourselves, Pieman and Bunk spent the entire night constructing a 26 page document that had a much more objective analysis of the topic. That doc has now been placed into high amounts of scrutiny, with responses attacking his main points. But this little document is not that, this document explores one big thing Bunk and Pieman missed. One big thing that, even if every point the two made was correct, completely demolishes Vexx's character.

At the very end of the document, the two criticize the entire community for their handling of the situation, mainly stating that the community applied very little skepticism when approaching the issue. I disagree. In fact, within the first 25 minutes of the situation unfolding, the community spent more time confused and worried and waiting for Vexx's response. Vexx's response and subsequent deactivation was when the community began going rabid. The reason this happened was because Vexx's response was an active load of dogshit, and is the second worst response to grooming allegations I have ever seen. But the main thing that sent people over the edge was that Vexx admitted that the DMs did in fact happen. Now, this is not an attempt to prove that one singular point wrong, but it's a nice segue into what I want to talk about. What if I told you that the most damning evidence against Vexx's character comes from, ironically, her attempts to save face.

I know everything seems bad and i could get in big trouble for this but, it was never my intention to ' groom ' desi or anything like that.. Like i had said in the photos i get really

Across the entire document, Vexx constantly vents how incredibly disgusted she feels at what she did, but there is no better quote to use than this one. She responds to the allegations of "grooming" by specifying her intentions. She doesn't flat out say "what I did wasn't pedophillic", but instead "I am not a groomer". Now, let's add onto this with several screenshots from when Kore initially found out Vexx's age. (Apologies for the blur, this is lifted right out of the video)

Vexx Today at 8:31 PM

Based on everything provided in these screenshots, we can draw two things, that Vexx, while denying that she is a pedophile, is not denying that her actions were pedophillic and wrong, and that Vexx knew that what she was doing was wrong but was scared to tell anybody. The initial document Bunk and Pieman wrote, when briefly touching on my response to them, stated that while Vexx admitted the DMs were genuine, she didn't admit that they were illegal. However, from both the quote from said apology I listed above, where she makes no attempt to say that her actions weren't pedophillic and illegal, and the screenshots. I think it's fair to say that she was under the impression that what she did was illegal. Kore directly says that Vexx's actions are pedophillic and that she is going to tell somebody. Vexx makes no attempt to say that her actions were not pedophillic in a situation that could cost her her reputation, nor does she do so for the next 24 hours before it becomes public. Yes, she says that she's not a pedophile, however she makes no attempt to deny that her actions were pedophillic.

I was so scared to ever talk about my age after i had snapped out of my foggy headspace bc i didnt want people to freak out.. And i didnt want to get in trouble..

Additionally, if Vexx didn't believe that her actions were not pedophillic at all, then why was she scared to talk about her age? It's so people didn't freak out and so she didn't get into any trouble. Now ask yourself this. Why would Vexx believe she would get into trouble for being 18 and sexually DMing a 15 year old if she didn't believe it was pedophillic?

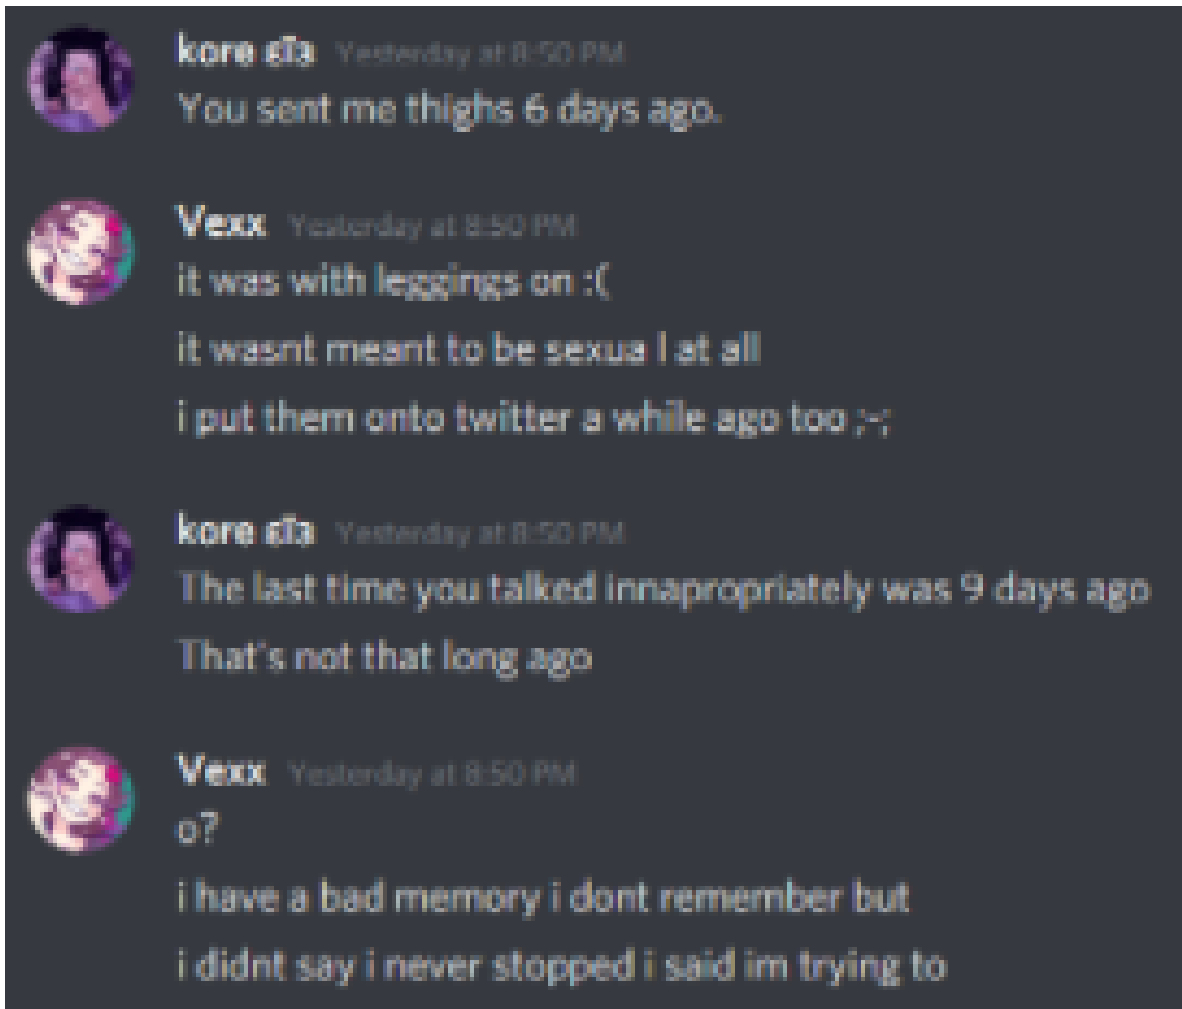

Additionally, if she didn't believe it was pedophillic, why did she make no active attempt to defend herself in her statement? The only defenses she made were that she was in a "foggy headspace" and that she had no intention to groom anyone.

Whether or not her actions were actually pedophillic is irrelevant here, the point is that it is demonstrably clear that she believed that her actions were pedophillic after she snapped out of her "foggy headspace".

There are two shown, one agreed upon and one alleged instance of Vexx doing this, once on the 7th of July, once the 26th of July, once on the 3rd of August, and once on the 6th of August with Vexx sending a picture of her thighs.

In response to being told that the last time that she had incredibly sexual conversations was six days ago, Vexx says that she was making an attempt to stop, but didn't stop. If Vexx truly did not believe that nothing was wrong with what they were doing, why attempt to stop?

Vexx was aware, but still continued on.

If Vexx genuinely wanted to terminate what she believed were pedophilic interactions, wouldn't she have actually disclosed her age immediately upon being made aware? Based on Kore's own statement in the video that Vexx was aware of Kore's age from the beginning, Vexx knowingly started these conversations with her and came to the realization that it was wrong after she had snapped back. After doing so on the first occasion, she had the opportunity to actually come clean if the situation was as involuntary as she phrased it. She continuously phrases the situation as if it's more a result of sexual drives than complete control.

everything that you see from me that wasnt me when i was horny
is me
vexx

However, she doesn't mention this at all when having the opportunity to bring up her age, or even the fact that it was not fully voluntary at all. Instead sitting herself atop a ticking timebomb. The bomb only gets worse once she still continues to talk to Kore like that. If it really was as involuntary as she frames it, then why did she not specify that afterwards? Especially when you're supposedly friends and could have had honest communication about this. But yet instead she intentionally withholds information. This doesn't happen just one time however. The cycle of her supposedly becoming a sex machine, snapping back and supposedly feeling terrible while not apologizing continues multiple times.

Okay uhm..

but.. yeah i guess.. That's it then..

Please dont spam me or spam @ me i've been really.. Really nervous and stressed out over everything just if you wanna talk to me about anything else pls just message me calmly and i'll try my best to answer :(

So, Vexx's statement is actual fucking garbage, I had an entire thread on the matter. To summarize, the statement is clearly manipulative and is trying to make her come across as weak. It's a trap many apologies fall into and it exposes what the writer actually intends. It's a trap I tried desperately to avoid during last night's apology. Vexx constantly used ellipses and words like "um". She constantly kept talking about how stressed out she was and even resorted to using a fucking sad emoticon. This, while part of a normal person's speech patterns, are intentionally added by a writer to showcase that the person writing is in a place of weakness, predisposing more people to feel sorry for her. The wording is a clear attempt to sway the audience.

So why does this honestly matter? Vexx didn't actually groom Kore, both were above their own ages of consent. Pieman and Bunk did a rather fine job showcasing that. However, it doesn't change what we saw. What we got to see was a simulation of how Vexx WOULD act if the person were actually underage. Yes, Kore and Vexx doing what they did was, in the law's eyes, fine. However, Vexx believed it wasn't. This entire display is how Vexx acts around people she's attracted to that she also believes to be underage. She roleplays with them, deliberately withholds her age from them once she realizes how bad it is, and then repeats the cycle again and again. Then, when outed, attempts to sway the reader into pitying her.

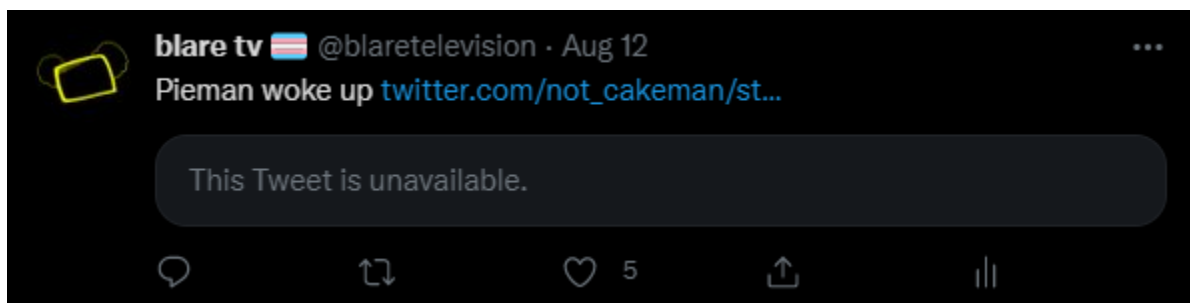

No. It's not illegal. But this IS how she would have acted if it WAS illegal, because she believed it to be illegal. Vexx was unknowingly placed into a pedophillia simulator, and she deliberately had sexual conversations with what she thought was someone under the age of consent and attempted to hide her age. The legality of the situation does not change the fact that this is how she acts around seemingly underage people she's attracted to, and it is Undeniably Vexx.

I would like to end this document off with a defense of Pieman. It's pretty clear to say that Pieman is quite the scapegoat in the community, she's quite infamous for having bad takes. Many have interpreted Pieman's document as a malicious attempt to clear Vexx's name, whether it be through some secret vendetta against Kore or to further defend herself after John Swan went Mask Off or because Pieman and Vexx were friends. I disagree.

In Pieman's very first statement on the matter, she said that there were tweets in regards to Vexx that jumped to more of a negative conclusion. I can confirm that those tweets did exist, I even QRT'd one of them.

Pieman specified time and time again that the document's intent was for an objective analysis of the topic due to misinformation, objective analysis that, depending on where you stand, went horribly horribly wrong. Pieman has certainly had a history of slip-ups in the past. A good example would be the Logan Paul incident, which fell into a trap of confirmation bias, which is what the document The End of Pieman highlights the most. On release of her initial document, Pieman DMed me expressing her disappointment that I had spread misinformation about Vexx's actions, despite working on a gigantic video on these allegations myself. I genuinely believe Pieman is just trying to work as best as possibly here.

Well speaking of that video, I'm going back to my hole to continue working on that video, this situation certainly was insightful for my work. I'm not going to be active on this hellsite, if you want to talk, contact me at blare tv#0200 on discord, although I'm trying not to be too active anymore. I've been meaning to take a break from social media for my own mental health for a while, and I think it's good for me to do that to make sure editing works better.

But yeah, I'm out until the video's done. See you guys. Sorry for the shitty grammar as well.
