Biography

Growing up in a heavily conservative, traditional family, wrestling was considered demonic. Still, this individual was drawn to it. Caught once too many, family labelled her evil and demonic, disowning her and casting her out. Once on the Mexican Lucha scene, she met Matias. She empathized with his hostile family dynamic having still been devastated by her now former family.

With Matias, and herself with him being exiled from their promotion due to heightened tension, she was again left without a home. She adopted the ring name Ella Sin from Spanish for “She without...”

She had no home, no family, or family name. She had no creed. She forged her path forward without anything to hold her back.

A performance at Zion’s 2025 / 4th edition of Destiny was a breakout, star-making moment that solidified Ella as a singles star. It was rather sudden and out of nowhere. One question remains; what now?

Entrance:

The lights in the arena go dark, the tron and the centre of the stage have a bicolored down the middle black and red faceless mask projected onto them. The faceless mask morphs into the face of the performer known as Ella Sin.

That same spot on centre stage blinks three times. On the third, Ella Sin is revealed in the flesh. She is in a kneeling pose, face to the sky. The arena comes alive with the sounds of Moris Blak’s “At the End of Exile” and flames illuminating the stage and path to the ring.

Having made her way to ringside, Ella would enter through the ropes before finding a corner to wait in. As she would take off her horns, she would kiss each one before kissing her title (if she so has one.)
