

Ours school

Liceo delle scienze umane

(secondary school for umane science)

Our school is a quite small and it is a old building, consists of three floors.
Inside there are:

- Eleven classrooms
- Two laboratories
- A library
- A video room
- Gym (under construction)

The students who attend this school are about two hundred and sixty.

On the first floor, where there is the entrance on the right we find the computer room.

On left a classroom where some disabled boys make the educational work with their teachers.

Down the hall, there is the desk of the schoolkeepers, alongside the chemistry lab and in front of it there is the physics laboratory, near the toilet.

Deep in the corridor there are the machines with snacks, the elevator (which leads to the third floor) and the gym. Near the gym there is a library.

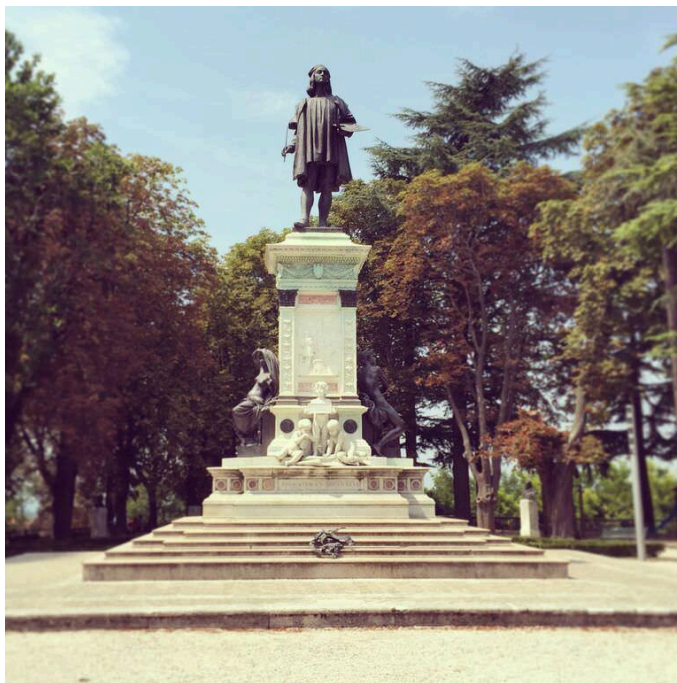

Climbing the stairs reach the second floor where there are six classrooms. Are large and spacious enough, each containing about twenty students; inside there are two blackboards, a cabinet, benches, a chair, the maps in the walls and windows.

At the center of the floor there is a vast space where there is a large table where some guys chat or eat during intermission. Finally, the third and top floor there are five classes, the classroom videos and of course the toilet.

The plans of the various floors are covered with colorful paintings.

Outside of our school we find some open space in front we have the parking for teachers and a few small houses, while behind there is a small garden.

Coming to our school we can see the great statue of the famous painter Raffaello Sanzio, surrounded by gardens, benches and tall chestnut.

From our class, located on the third floor, we can see the beautiful towers of Urbino and the vast hills behind. Urbino is a small historical and cultural hamlet full of beautiful spaces and twisted alleys.
