

Attention mission

Set the timer for 10 mins, scroll through any social media platform, and write down everything that catches your attention and why.

Scrolling through youtube shorts, I came across a video of Luke Belmar, a wealthy guy who made his money through drop shipping and then later invested in crypto and made millions.

Luke mentioned motivation, as he talks about if you are not motivated it's basically for a few reasons, he listed reasons by saying:

- Either you may not like what you're doing
- either you don't understand the mission as to why you are doing something

I can relate to some of what he is saying, my 8-6 job isn't the best but it is the only source of income that I have to make a living.

Also, copywriting is a whole new program for me, I had never heard of it in my entire life, and struggling to understand the lessons and missions I get frustrated and want to give up.

-But when Luke mentioned that if you and your family are in a bad place, you will get up and work as hard as ever so that you won't be soft and comfortable living a life knowing that you got people who need you and depends on you,

I reflected upon that statement, as I pledged myself that no matter how hard something is I won't give up, even if I have to go through this copywriting course a couple of times I will and I won't give in to the weak state of mind.

Although English isn't a subject I dwell with much I will push myself harder to learn, pushing passing my limits, as I live by a quote that goes "It is a shame for a man too old grow and weak, not knowing what he is capable of, not knowing his full potential and push any limits of his" and I felt that.
