Skin Care and Diet For Dogs

Skin care for our dogs is so very important. We all love our dogs and we want to take care of them to ensure that they have the healthiest life that they can possibly have. So we walk and play with our friends, allowing them to get plenty of exercise. However, along with all the love and affection, the playing and long naps in the afternoon, you also have to look after them; this entails promoting the health of their skin.

Taking care of your dog's skin is important just as it is important for us. The condition of their skin goes hand in hand with their health and we all want our cuddly buddies to be healthy, always. If you want to make sure that the condition of your dog's skin is at its best there are two areas of skin care for dogs that will get you started.

A balanced diet: There are ways wherein we can naturally improve the skin of our dogs; all we have to do is go into our kitchen.

If you are in the routine of preparing your dog's meals, you can add a few drops of unsaturated vegetable oil into the food. The oil acts as a lubricant and has the potential to make your dog's skin glossy and shiny if you continue this practice on a regular basis.

If you are not in the habit of cooking your dog's meal, then you have the option to add a few droplets of unsaturated vegetable oil over dry dog food. This will accomplish the same goal.

It also could be of benefit if you include small amounts of vegetables and lentils in at mealtimes.

Another way to keep your dog's skin and coat in good shape is to add yogurt in their food. You can also use yeast supplement or brewer's yeast in addition to the yogurt or as alternative.

Hygiene: Bathing and brushing is an important aspect of skin care for dogs.

You should daily brush your dog with a wire slicker brush. It strengthens the hair follicles and helps spreads the natural oils produced by your dog's skin. You might not have known, but it also helps detoxify your dog's system, wherein different kinds of toxins are eliminated by doing something as simple as this.

In addition, to brushing daily, you should also check for parasites such as, ticks and fleas. They can very much irritate the skin and cause rashes.

Bathing on the other hand, is not such a good thing since it can dry out your dog's skin and cause hot spots. Many veterinarians suggest that you only give your dog a bath once a month.

Keep these simple, but effective tips. This way, your dog will look lovely and be healthy at the same time.
