Airport Troubles

On my recent trip to New York, I had quite the adventure at the airport. When I arrived at the check-in counter, I realized I had left my passport at home! I had to call my friend to bring it to me, which made me almost miss my flight. After finally checking in, I went through security, but I forgot to remove my laptop from my bag. The security officer asked me to go back and take it out. It was a stressful start, but once I got on the plane, things started to get better.

During the flight, I sat next to a friendly couple who were visiting New York for the first time. We exchanged travel tips, and they recommended a few restaurants and museums I hadn't heard of. When the plane landed, I felt both tired and excited, ready to explore the city!
