DETAILED PERSONALITY:

Raxion is a more laid back individual. He can get quite uptight when it comes to his sisters, but that is just out of love for them and a desire to see them protected and happy. He is quite fond of his parents, as they were good parents growing up, and while he no longer wants to pursue dance professionally he does still enjoy occasionally attending his mother's classes, even sometimes assisting with the teaching.

Not complaining, I'm just saying, your loss is mine to hold.

HISTORY:

Lydia Park and Ji Yoo Moon met when Ji Yoo transferred from University of Seoul, South Korea to a University in London in order to have a semester abroad experience while he continued his studies in Chemistry. During the summer before the semester started, he met Lydia Park who was home for the summer from her studies at Hogwarts School of Witchcraft and Wizardry. The two had a summer romance, before Lydia had to go back to her boarding school for her Seventh year. She initially assumed it would be the end of her and Ji Yoo, however he asked if they could continue to write to each other and perhaps meeting again over her breaks. Surprised by the offer, but encouraged nonetheless as she was quite interested, Lydia agreed and the two continued their romance. Once Lydia had graduated from Hogwarts, the pair only grew closer until Ji Yoo proposed and Lydia said yes, before then also letting him in on the secret of magic. Lydia attended WADA to study dance theory so that she could open her own studio in London, while Ji Yoo obtained permanent residency in London and accepted as a chemistry teacher at a local school.

They went on to have four children together, Raxion Moon is the eldest of the triplets, followed then by a younger sister who is finishing school in London. He is the only male sibling, so takes his job as protector of his sister's quite seriously. He curses the fact that they of COURSE had to end up being PRETTY. Raxion attend Hogwarts School of Witchcraft and Wizardry where he was previously a Gryffindor. His school years went by fairly quickly, and he remained mostly out of trouble. Raxion considered pursuing dance as a career, but when he was 15 years old he shattered his kneecap which left it weakened. During this time, he became aware of a love of magical creatures he didn't previously know he possessed, specifically Dragons.

Rax completed half a term at an internship in Norway at a Dragon reserve as part of his final project as a student, however due to the happenings of the Wizarding World and dragons being released from another preserve he was relocated back to London where he began assisting at the family dance studio due to his sister's mysterious illness. Rax also spent the majority of his time pining over his failed attempt at relationship with one Kamryn Keighley (now married and not to him) and worrying about his youngest sister still at Hogwarts whom had ceased communication for the entire year. When a war broke out at Hogwarts, Rax was one of the first there to bust the youngest Moon out. Rax sustained minor injury during the battle, thankfully to his head and not his knees again, but it was worth it as the Moon siblings were reunited at last.

Raxion went on to get a permanent position offered at a Norwegian Creature Sanctuary and he immediately moved back to Norway. Prior to having accepted the position however, Raxion had met and made friends with one Soleil Olmos. The two quickly became fast friends, and when Soleil expressed the fact she had wanted to have kids and asked if he'd be willing to share his DNA for her fertility treatments, Rax had agreed - the plan being he would merely be a 'cool Uncle' to her kids if the treatment took. The treatment did work and Soleil became pregnant, with twins no less, and Rax showed up to help her as often as possible. It was around this time their relationship began to change from friendship to something more, and by the time the twins were born he and his now wife were in a romantic relationship. They went on to have 2 more kids, and are currently pregnant again. Soleil was previously a model and when she first got pregnant started her own clothing company and now works as a CEO. When her business really took off, Rax resigned from his position and agreed to stay home as a full time Dad so his wife could focus on her career.

In 2112, the family decided to open their own creature conservation on a large property they bought out in Norway from Soleil's profits. Rax stays home with both the kids and taking care of the creatures.

So to the man who let her go, I'm thanking you the most
