

Email Template: Demanding for More Diverse Curricula

Dear [Teacher/Superintendent Name],

Hello. My name is [your name]. I am in [your grade] at [your school]. I hope that you are doing well and staying safe during these unprecedented times. I am reaching out with a plea, one very pressing considering America's current political climate and the universal demand for racial equality. I believe that, in light of recent events, it is more important than ever to come together and unite under a racially inclusive curriculum.

Today's students are tomorrow's leaders, and the first step to meaningfully implementing change comes in the classroom. By informing students about the history of racism in both our country and the world, teachers have the chance to foster an environment in which productive and necessary conversations can be held. Learning about the circumstances of our fellow human beings builds empathy, an important life skill that will serve our next generation well. By encouraging racial inclusivity, celebrating each other's histories, and encouraging diversity, we can ensure that tomorrow's leaders bring about the change our world so desperately needs.

Down below are some resources that have been collected by the student-led initiative HiStory Retold. On their website, they have linked enrichment materials specific to each era of US History, along with informative testimonials, novels, and articles. We understand that classes maintain a rigidly set curriculum throughout the school year, but we hope that some of these enrichment materials can be taught in accordance with regular lesson plans.

The link to resources is here.

We hope that you will join us in embracing a more inclusive and representative curriculum. Empathy is born and encouraged in the classroom; our lessons can shape the people we are destined to be. Let's ensure together that we raise a generation who understands and embraces each other's differences.

Thank you so much for your time and consideration. For more information on HiStory Retold's mission, see here. Have a great rest of your day.

Sincerely,
[Your Name]
