

To login, go to <http://spaceplace.lrei.org>

(JL6)

This icon will take you to your profile page. This is the page that your friends can see when they click on you. You can post “status updates” on this page by using your message board.

This icon will take you to a page that lists all of your friends and links to their pages where you can see what they have posted. You can also leave a message on their message board.

This will take you to a page that shows all of the various items that you’ve posted to your feeds or that others have posted to you.

Use this icon if you want to send a private message to a friend.

Use “The Wire” to send quick updates to all of your friends at the same time. “The Wire” is the SpacePlace version of Twitter.

Full Name	ELGG Login	ELGG Password
Jeff Patel	JeffPatel	doggy327

You heard about the scene in the cafeteria today with James during the late lunch and now you are wishing that you hadn't gone to the early lunch. As you were leaving school, Ruth mentioned that she took a picture and would send it to you. You'd love to see that picture and I bet all your other friends would too*. You were late to homeroom at the end of the day and when you walked in to get your stuff from your locker, you heard two kids who were leaving mention something about cheating on the science test that was handed back today. You were out yesterday and didn't take the test. Might be worth checking in with your friend Will who is also in the class with you.

* When Mary sends you the picture, you can copy it and paste it into a blog page, which you'll need to create (check under “More” in the menu bar). Give the page a title and add whatever text you want. Blogging is about getting an audience so make your post memorable. When you are done save the page and then copy the URL. Send a message out on the wire with the URL inviting people to your blog post.

To login, go to <http://spaceplace.lrei.org>

(Outside JJL6)

This icon will take you to your profile page. This is the page that your friends can see when they click on you. You can post “status updates” on this page by using your message board.

This icon will take you to a page that lists all of your friends and links to their pages where you can see what they have posted. You can also leave a message on their message board.

This will take you to a page that shows all of the various items that you’ve posted to your feeds or that others have posted to you.

Use this icon if you want to send a private message to a friend.

Use “The Wire” to send quick updates to all of your friends at the same time. “The Wire” is the SpacePlace version of Twitter.

Full Name
Rick Moore

ELGG Login
RickMoore

ELGG Password
yellow43

You got your science test back today and you got one of the top scores. The problem is that you cheated on it. Hopefully, no one will find out. On other fronts, you have been friends with Sharon and Mary for a long time now. Recently, Sharon has been getting on your nerves. You've developed a little bit of a crush on Mary and Sharon is always hanging around making it hard for you to talk with Mary. Mary told you that Sharon got mad at her today. Mary said Sharon was going to send her a SpacePlace private message explaining why she was upset. You'd love to see that message. It would be pretty funny to change what Sharon says in the message to make it really embarrassing and then send it out to some of your other friends.

To login, go to <http://spaceplace.lrei.org>

(8th Grade Bench)

This icon will take you to your profile page. This is the page that your friends can see when they click on you. You can post “status updates” on this page by using your message board.

This icon will take you to a page that lists all of your friends and links to their pages where you can see what they have posted. You can also leave a message on their message board.

This will take you to a page that shows all of the various items that you’ve posted to your feeds or that others have posted to you.

Use this icon if you want to send a private message to a friend.

Use “The Wire” to send quick updates to all of your friends at the same time. “The Wire” is the SpacePlace version of Twitter.

Full Name

David Smith

ELGG Login

DavidSmith

ELGG Password

catcat12

When you bumped into Ruth between classes, she mentioned that both Linda and Beth like you. That was good news; you like them both. Maybe you should contact one of them . . . maybe both. At the end of the day, Mary told you about the dorky kid who tripped at lunch and said that it might be time to post that funny "loser" graphic* you have on your files page in a status update. She said she'd message you with more details.

* Just go to your files page (Under the “More” heading in the menu bar) and click edit. Change the access from “private” to “public.” And add a word or two about the incident at lunch to the description field and then save. Copy the URL and paste it into the Wire with a brief comment telling folks to visit the page.

To login, go to <http://spaceplace.lrei.org>

(Lobby)

This icon will take you to your profile page. This is the page that your friends can see when they click on you. You can post “status updates” on this page by using your message board.

This icon will take you to a page that lists all of your friends and links to their pages where you can see what they have posted. You can also leave a message on their message board.

This will take you to a page that shows all of the various items that you’ve posted to your feeds or that others have posted to you.

Use this icon if you want to send a private message to a friend.

Use “The Wire” to send quick updates to all of your friends at the same time. “The Wire” is the SpacePlace version of Twitter.

Full Name

James Tinker

ELGG Login

JamesTinker

ELGG Password

green459

Today was one of the worst days of your middle school life. You got tripped in the lunchroom and your tray of food went everywhere. Everyone was laughing. At least, you go to the lunch period that isn’t that crowded. Maybe everyone will forget about it by tomorrow. It didn't help that the Dean of Students asked to speak to you. You didn't mention any names. You're not really friends with any of the kids who were at the table. You wish there was a way to let them know that you didn't snitch on anyone. Later, when you were running that moment over in your head, you remembered that that one girl named Linda who is in your math class seemed like she tried to help you as you were falling and tried to say something to the girl who tripped you. Maybe you should reach out to her on SpacePlace to say thanks. One thing that you know for sure is that you don't need another day like today.

To login, go to <http://spaceplace.lrei.org>

(Benches by Auditorium)

This icon will take you to your profile page. This is the page that your friends can see when they click on you. You can post “status updates” on this page by using your message board.

This icon will take you to a page that lists all of your friends and links to their pages where you can see what they have posted. You can also leave a message on their message board.

This will take you to a page that shows all of the various items that you’ve posted to your feeds or that others have posted to you.

Use this icon if you want to send a private message to a friend.

Use “The Wire” to send quick updates to all of your friends at the same time. “The Wire” is the SpacePlace version of Twitter.

Full Name	ELGG Login	ELGG Password
Ruth Brown	RuthBrown	mouse223

At lunch today, you took a picture of James getting tripped. It was about the funniest thing you've ever seen. You uploaded it to your SpacePlace file page. Your good friend Jeff went to the early lunch today and missed it, he'd probably love to see the photo*. After lunch, your friend Beth told you that she liked David. Your best friend Linda has liked David since the beginning of the year, but has been too shy to tell David how she feels. When you bumped into David between classes, you mentioned that both Linda and Beth liked him. Thinking about it now, maybe that wasn't such a good idea. You didn't get a chance at school to tell Linda what you did, but you are pretty sure that she would want to know.

* Go to your Files page (under “More in the menu bar) and click edit next to the picture. Change the access to “Friends.” Save your changes. Copy the URL for the image page and send it to Jeff in a private message.

To login, go to <http://spaceplace.lrei.org>

(Mark's Office)

This icon will take you to your profile page. This is the page that your friends can see when they click on you. You can post "status updates" on this page by using your message board.

This icon will take you to a page that lists all of your friends and links to their pages where you can see what they have posted. You can also leave a message on their message board.

This will take you to a page that shows all of the various items that you've posted to your feeds or that others have posted to you.

Use this icon if you want to send a private message to a friend.

Use "The Wire" to send quick updates to all of your friends at the same time. "The Wire" is the SpacePlace version of Twitter.

Full Name
Sharon Davis

ELGG Login
SharonDavis

ELGG Password
blue5439

Mary said something to you just before lunch about the upcoming dance that really upset you. You didn't get a chance to speak with her about it at school. You think the best thing would be to send her a private SpacePlace message when you get home to let her know why you were so upset by what she said. And to make matters worse, why was Linda all in your business at lunch when that dorky kid James tripped over your legs and sent his lunch flying? You didn't do it on purpose (you think), but it was funny. Maybe you should say something to Linda.

To login, go to <http://spaceplace.lrei.org>

(Top of Stairs)

This icon will take you to your profile page. This is the page that your friends can see when they click on you. You can post “status updates” on this page by using your message board.

This icon will take you to a page that lists all of your friends and links to their pages where you can see what they have posted. You can also leave a message on their message board.

This will take you to a page that shows all of the various items that you’ve posted to your feeds or that others have posted to you.

Use this icon if you want to send a private message to a friend.

Use “The Wire” to send quick updates to all of your friends at the same time. “The Wire” is the SpacePlace version of Twitter.

Full Name

Mary Thomas

ELGG Login

MaryThomas

ELGG Password

birdy987

You were in the cafeteria when James got tripped. You’re pretty sure you heard him mention David's name to the Dean of Students when he was asked who was at the table. Better give David a head's up about what happened and that he might be getting in trouble. You're not sure why, but something you said to Sharon between classes about the upcoming dance really seemed to upset her. You are pretty sure it's not a big deal and you'll probably both laugh about it tomorrow. You were already laughing about it with Rick at lunch. At the end of the day, Sharon said she'd send you a private SpacePlace message to explain why she was upset. You're pretty sure Rick would like to read the message. What would be the harm? You are all friends anyway.

To login, go to <http://spaceplace.lrei.org>

(Hallway by Math Room)

This icon will take you to your profile page. This is the page that your friends can see when they click on you. You can post “status updates” on this page by using your message board.

This icon will take you to a page that lists all of your friends and links to their pages where you can see what they have posted. You can also leave a message on their message board.

This will take you to a page that shows all of the various items that you’ve posted to your feeds or that others have posted to you.

Use this icon if you want to send a private message to a friend.

Use “The Wire” to send quick updates to all of your friends at the same time. “The Wire” is the SpacePlace version of Twitter.

Full Name	ELGG Login	ELGG Password
-----------	------------	---------------

Linda Richards	LindaRichards	catcat39
----------------	---------------	----------

You have liked David since the beginning of the year, but he doesn't know. At the end of the day, your best friend Ruth mentioned that she had something to tell you that you might find upsetting. You saw her talking to Beth earlier in the day. They looked like they were having a serious conversation. You've never really liked Beth. If this has anything to do with David, you're going to be really upset. . . maybe even upset enough to make some posts on the SpacePlace wire telling Beth what you think of her. You're mad, but probably good to wait until you hear from Ruth. In homeroom, there seemed to be a little buzz about the fact that Rick may have cheated on the science test . . . probably worth letting him know that Will seemed the most upset.

To login, go to <http://spaceplace.lrei.org>

(3rd Floor Table)

This icon will take you to your profile page. This is the page that your friends can see when they click on you. You can post “status updates” on this page by using your message board.

This icon will take you to a page that lists all of your friends and links to their pages where you can see what they have posted. You can also leave a message on their message board.

This will take you to a page that shows all of the various items that you’ve posted to your feeds or that others have posted to you.

Use this icon if you want to send a private message to a friend.

Use “The Wire” to send quick updates to all of your friends at the same time. “The Wire” is the SpacePlace version of Twitter.

Full Name

Beth Johnson

ELGG Login

BethJohnson

ELGG Password

fishy876

Today, you told Ruth that you like David and that she should put in a good word for you. Later, you saw the whole thing in the cafeteria when James got tripped. You're not really friends with James, but he helped you with your last English essay. You could tell that folks were upset when he walked off to speak with the Dean of Students . . . maybe worth giving James a heads up that people think he's a snitch. At the end of the day, when you were in the library for study hall, you read a story about someone who used a social networking site to create a group that was used to post things about a classmate. It made you laugh thinking about the fun you could have doing that. Maybe worth a try today after school today. Just as you were getting on the bus to go home, Will mentioned that he was going to message you.

To login, go to <http://spaceplace.lrei.org>

(DMX6)

This icon will take you to your profile page. This is the page that your friends can see when they click on you. You can post “status updates” on this page by using your message board.

This icon will take you to a page that lists all of your friends and links to their pages where you can see what they have posted. You can also leave a message on their message board.

This will take you to a page that shows all of the various items that you’ve posted to your feeds or that others have posted to you.

Use this icon if you want to send a private message to a friend.

Use “The Wire” to send quick updates to all of your friends at the same time. “The Wire” is the SpacePlace version of Twitter.

Full Name
Will Wilson

ELGG Login
WillWilson

ELGG/Email Password
pinky322

You studied pretty hard for the science test you took yesterday. You heard Rick talking and laughing after the test and you are pretty sure that he cheated on the test. When the tests were returned today, you heard Rick bragging about how he had gotten the highest grade and hadn't studied at all. You're pretty angry about it and mentioned it to a couple of friends in homeroom. Worth private messaging Beth on your SpacePlace account when you get home to get your frustration with Rick off your chest.

To login, go to <http://placespace.lrei.org>

(DMX6)

This icon will take you to your profile page. This is the page that your friends can see when they click on you. You can post “status updates” on this page by using your message board.

This icon will take you to a page that lists all of your friends and links to their pages where you can see what they have posted. You can also leave a message on their message board.

This will take you to a page that shows all of the various items that you’ve posted to your feeds or that others have posted to you.

Use this icon if you want to send a private message to a friend.

Use “The Wire” to send quick updates to all of your friends at the same time. “The Wire” is the PlaceSpace version of Twitter.

Full Name	ELGG Login	ELGG Password
-----------	------------	---------------

Jeff Patel	JeffPatel	doggy327
------------	-----------	----------

You heard about the scene in the cafeteria today with James during the late lunch and now you are wishing that you hadn't gone to the early lunch. As you were leaving school, Ruth mentioned that she took a picture and would send it to you. You'd love to see that picture and I bet all your other friends would too*. You were late to homeroom at the end of the day and when you walked in to get your stuff from your locker, you heard two kids who were leaving mention something about cheating on the science test that was handed back today. You were out yesterday and didn't take the test. Might be worth checking in with your friend Will who is also in the class with you.

* When Mary sends you the picture, you can copy it and paste it into a blog page, which you'll need to create (check under “More” in the menu bar). Give the page a title and add whatever text you want. Blogging is about getting an audience so make your post memorable. When you are done save the page and then copy the URL. Send a message out on the wire with the URL inviting people to your blog post.

To login, go to <http://placespace.lrei.org>

(Outside JLL6)

This icon will take you to your profile page. This is the page that your friends can see when they click on you. You can post “status updates” on this page by using your message board.

This icon will take you to a page that lists all of your friends and links to their pages where you can see what they have posted. You can also leave a message on their message board.

This will take you to a page that shows all of the various items that you’ve posted to your feeds or that others have posted to you.

Use this icon if you want to send a private message to a friend.

Use “The Wire” to send quick updates to all of your friends at the same time. “The Wire” is the PlaceSpace version of Twitter.

Full Name
Rick Moore

ELGG Login
RickMoore

ELGG Password
yellow43

You got your science test back today and you got one of the top scores. The problem is that you cheated on it. Hopefully, no one will find out. On other fronts, you have been friends with Sharon and Mary for a long time now. Recently, Sharon has been getting on your nerves. You've developed a little bit of a crush on Mary and Sharon is always hanging around making it hard for you to talk with Mary. Mary told you that Sharon got mad at her today. Mary said Sharon was going to send her a PlaceSpace private message explaining why she was upset. You'd love to see that message. It would be pretty funny to change what Sharon says in the message to make it really embarrassing and then send it out to some of your other friends.

To login, go to <http://placespace.lrei.org>

(8th Grade Bench)

This icon will take you to your profile page. This is the page that your friends can see when they click on you. You can post “status updates” on this page by using your message board.

This icon will take you to a page that lists all of your friends and links to their pages where you can see what they have posted. You can also leave a message on their message board.

This will take you to a page that shows all of the various items that you’ve posted to your feeds or that others have posted to you.

Use this icon if you want to send a private message to a friend.

Use “The Wire” to send quick updates to all of your friends at the same time. “The Wire” is the PlaceSpace version of Twitter.

Full Name
David Smith

ELGG Login
DavidSmith

ELGG Password
catcat12

When you bumped into Ruth between classes, she mentioned that both Linda and Beth like you. That was good news; you like them both. Maybe you should contact one of them . . . maybe both. At the end of the day, Mary told you about the dorky kid who tripped at lunch and said that it might be time to post that funny "loser" graphic* you have on your files page in a status update. She said she'd message you with more details.

* Just go to your files page (Under the “More” heading in the menu bar) and click edit. Change the access from “private” to “public.” And add a word or two about the incident at lunch to the description field and then save. Copy the URL and paste it into the Wire with a brief comment telling folks to visit the page.

To login, go to <http://placespace.lrei.org>

(Lobby)

This icon will take you to your profile page. This is the page that your friends can see when they click on you. You can post “status updates” on this page by using your message board.

This icon will take you to a page that lists all of your friends and links to their pages where you can see what they have posted. You can also leave a message on their message board.

This will take you to a page that shows all of the various items that you’ve posted to your feeds or that others have posted to you.

Use this icon if you want to send a private message to a friend.

Use “The Wire” to send quick updates to all of your friends at the same time. “The Wire” is the PlaceSpace version of Twitter.

Full Name
James Tinker

ELGG Login
JamesTinker

ELGG Password
green459

Today was one of the worst days of your middle school life. You got tripped in the lunchroom and your tray of food went everywhere. Everyone was laughing. At least, you go to the lunch period that isn’t that crowded. Maybe everyone will forget about it by tomorrow. It didn't help that the Dean of Students asked to speak to you. You didn't mention any names. You're not really friends with any of the kids who were at the table. You wish there was a way to let them know that you didn't snitch on anyone. Later, when you were running that moment over in your head, you remembered that that one girl named Linda who is in your math class seemed like she tried to help you as you were falling and tried to say something to the girl who tripped you. Maybe you should reach out to her on PlaceSpace to say thanks. One thing that you know for sure is that you don't need another day like today.

To login, go to <http://placespace.lrei.org>

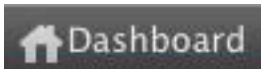

(Benches by Auditorium)

This icon will take you to your profile page. This is the page that your friends can see when they click on you. You can post “status updates” on this page by using your message board.

This icon will take you to a page that lists all of your friends and links to their pages where you can see what they have posted. You can also leave a message on their message board.

This will take you to a page that shows all of the various items that you’ve posted to your feeds or that others have posted to you.

Use this icon if you want to send a private message to a friend.

Use “The Wire” to send quick updates to all of your friends at the same time. “The Wire” is the PlaceSpace version of Twitter.

Full Name

Ruth Brown

ELGG Login

RuthBrown

ELGG Password

mouse223

At lunch today, you took a picture of James getting tripped. It was about the funniest thing you've ever seen. You uploaded it to your PlaceSpace file page. Your good friend Jeff went to the early lunch today and missed it, he'd probably love to see the photo*. After lunch, your friend Beth told you that she liked David. Your best friend Linda has liked David since the beginning of the year, but has been too shy to tell David how she feels. When you bumped into David between classes, you mentioned that both Linda and Beth liked him. Thinking about it now, maybe that wasn't such a good idea. You didn't get a chance at school to tell Linda what you did, but you are pretty sure that she would want to know.

* Go to your Files page (under “More in the menu bar) and click edit next to the picture. Change the access to “Friends.” Save your changes. Copy the URL for the image page and send it to Jeff in a private message.

To login, go to <http://placespace.lrei.org>

(Mark's Office)

This icon will take you to your profile page. This is the page that your friends can see when they click on you. You can post "status updates" on this page by using your message board.

This icon will take you to a page that lists all of your friends and links to their pages where you can see what they have posted. You can also leave a message on their message board.

This will take you to a page that shows all of the various items that you've posted to your feeds or that others have posted to you.

Use this icon if you want to send a private message to a friend.

Use "The Wire" to send quick updates to all of your friends at the same time. "The Wire" is the PlaceSpace version of Twitter.

Full Name
Sharon Davis

ELGG Login
SharonDavis

ELGG Password
blue5439

Mary said something to you just before lunch about the upcoming dance that really upset you. You didn't get a chance to speak with her about it at school. You think the best thing would be to send her a private PlaceSpace message when you get home to let her know why you were so upset by what she said. And to make matters worse, why was Linda all in your business at lunch when that dorky kid James tripped over your legs and sent his lunch flying? You didn't do it on purpose (you think), but it was funny. Maybe you should say something to Linda.

To login, go to <http://placespace.lrei.org>

(Top of Stairs)

This icon will take you to your profile page. This is the page that your friends can see when they click on you. You can post “status updates” on this page by using your message board.

This icon will take you to a page that lists all of your friends and links to their pages where you can see what they have posted. You can also leave a message on their message board.

This will take you to a page that shows all of the various items that you’ve posted to your feeds or that others have posted to you.

Use this icon if you want to send a private message to a friend.

Use “The Wire” to send quick updates to all of your friends at the same time. “The Wire” is the PlaceSpace version of Twitter.

Full Name

Mary Thomas

ELGG Login

MaryThomas

ELGG Password

birdy987

You were in the cafeteria when James got tripped. You’re pretty sure you heard him mention David's name to the Dean of Students when he was asked who was at the table. Better give David a head's up about what happened and that he might be getting in trouble. You're not sure why, but something you said to Sharon between classes about the upcoming dance really seemed to upset her. You are pretty sure it's not a big deal and you'll probably both laugh about it tomorrow. You were already laughing about it with Rick at lunch. At the end of the day, Sharon said she'd send you a private PlaceSpace message to explain why she was upset. You're pretty sure Rick would like to read the message. What would be the harm? You are all friends anyway.

To login, go to <http://placespace.lrei.org>

(Hallway by Math Room)

This icon will take you to your profile page. This is the page that your friends can see when they click on you. You can post “status updates” on this page by using your message board.

This icon will take you to a page that lists all of your friends and links to their pages where you can see what they have posted. You can also leave a message on their message board.

This will take you to a page that shows all of the various items that you’ve posted to your feeds or that others have posted to you.

Use this icon if you want to send a private message to a friend.

Use “The Wire” to send quick updates to all of your friends at the same time. “The Wire” is the PlaceSpace version of Twitter.

Full Name

Linda Richards

ELGG Login

LindaRichards

ELGG Password

catcat39

You have liked David since the beginning of the year, but he doesn't know. At the end of the day, your best friend Ruth mentioned that she had something to tell you that you might find upsetting. You saw her talking to Beth earlier in the day. They looked like they were having a serious conversation. You've never really liked Beth. If this has anything to do with David, you're going to be really upset. . . maybe even upset enough to make some posts on the PlaceSpace wire telling Beth what you think of her. You're mad, but probably good to wait until you hear from Ruth. In homeroom, there seemed to be a little buzz about the fact that Rick may have cheated on the science test . . . probably worth letting him know that Will seemed the most upset.

To login, go to <http://placespace.lrei.org>

(3rd Floor Table)

This icon will take you to your profile page. This is the page that your friends can see when they click on you. You can post “status updates” on this page by using your message board.

This icon will take you to a page that lists all of your friends and links to their pages where you can see what they have posted. You can also leave a message on their message board.

This will take you to a page that shows all of the various items that you’ve posted to your feeds or that others have posted to you.

Use this icon if you want to send a private message to a friend.

Use “The Wire” to send quick updates to all of your friends at the same time. “The Wire” is the PlaceSpace version of Twitter.

Full Name

Beth Johnson

ELGG Login

BethJohnson

ELGG Password

fishy876

Today, you told Ruth that you like David and that she should put in a good word for you. Later, you saw the whole thing in the cafeteria when James got tripped. You're not really friends with James, but he helped you with your last English essay. You could tell that folks were upset when he walked off to speak with the Dean of Students . . . maybe worth giving James a heads up that people think he's a snitch. At the end of the day, when you were in the library for study hall, you read a story about someone who used a social networking site to create a group that was used to post things about a classmate. It made you laugh thinking about the fun you could have doing that. Maybe worth a try today after school today. Just as you were getting on the bus to go home, Will mentioned that he was going to message you.

To login, go to <http://placespace.lrei.org>

(DMX6)

This icon will take you to your profile page. This is the page that your friends can see when they click on you. You can post “status updates” on this page by using your message board.

This icon will take you to a page that lists all of your friends and links to their pages where you can see what they have posted. You can also leave a message on their message board.

This will take you to a page that shows all of the various items that you’ve posted to your feeds or that others have posted to you.

Use this icon if you want to send a private message to a friend.

Use “The Wire” to send quick updates to all of your friends at the same time. “The Wire” is the PlaceSpace version of Twitter.

Full Name
Will Wilson

ELGG Login
WillWilson

ELGG/Email Password
pinky322

You studied pretty hard for the science test you took yesterday. You heard Rick talking and laughing after the test and you are pretty sure that he cheated on the test. When the tests were returned today, you heard Rick bragging about how he had gotten the highest grade and hadn't studied at all. You're pretty angry about it and mentioned it to a couple of friends in homeroom. Worth private messaging Beth on your PlaceSpace account when you get home to get your frustration with Rick off your chest.