Subject line: My roof was about to fall in my son's face, But a miracle saved him.

There's no worse feeling for a mother than knowing that your son's life is at risk and you cannot do anything.

Hi my name is Ellis.

I have a normal family, my husband works as a lumberjack, I have two sons called Timmy and Leo and we all live in Canada.

I usually spend most of the time cleaning and doing the shopping at the house.

My husband works too hard . He normally just comes back from work and sleeps all day, and my two kids are usually all day playing in the snow.

I normally tell them to get inside because it's too cold, but they never pay any attention so I need to drag them inside. I would have never thought that the best way to keep them safe would be to keep them outside.

We live in a really rusty and old house and the roof of the kids is too old. I've told my husband a bunch of times to change it, but he always tells me that it's not important to do it.

Thankfully a miracle appeared and my kids are still healthy and safe playing in the snow.
