SETTING

[\[view a Visual Layout\]](#)

Lives in a small, humble home. [His house contains a large kitchen with an island, his bedroom, a guestroom, 2 bathrooms, a 2-car garage, a foyer, a hallway, a studio and a common's area. It lacks communal aspects such like a family/living room, a dining area, and only has 2 actual bedrooms]. Tends to spend his time either in his bedroom or in the kitchen bar.

Eros is another well-off alias of Marquer's but is the most minimalistic about it: owns a small home, one car for himself [or two- but he doesn't really need more than one car], and a car for Castor. Most of his money went into Castor when Castor lived with him, otherwise it goes to Axio- putting himself last.

BACK STORY

Eros had been selling his body for longer than he can remember, just to get that money in. At first it was no problem at all and he enjoyed it as much as his clients did. He had regulars and a few lovers [those relationships never worked out]. He afforded himself a small space and made it his own; he wouldn't choose any other home to dwell in even if it's not the most ideal type of home [given that its small]. After a few years in uni, where mistakes were made, hearts were broken and sex was had- he dropped out and continued doing what he was good at, full time. His profession became a weight upon his shoulders when his depression worsened and could no longer enjoy it as much as he used to. Making love still is a comfort to him nonetheless. By the time he had his first child, Zenii [a child was something he was not ready for, nor had he the means to be a good father] he had to turn his studio into a bedroom for her- and with this sacrifice came more. But sooner or later Zenii then moved out and he was by himself again. This period didn't last long until Castor came into existence. Castor took Zenii's old room and things were how they were. As it would- there were problems and awkwardness when Eros had to keep up with his profession with a kid in the house. Castor was a dissident and ended up living with Eros for longer than what is meant for Fancy Enfields. Castor had to deal with Eros' many strange clients and regulars who visited and oftentimes stayed in the house. The atmosphere of the house remains unhealthy.

ONGOING STORY

After Castor eventually moved out the house and went to achieve his goals and aspirations, Eros stayed in his home- doing the only thing he knows. He kept Castor's room the same even though he could turn it back into a studio again- but he gave up on a lot of himself after a while so he became indifferent about that idea. Regardless, sometimes Castor returns home for a short period of time to catch up with him. Eros' depression worsened quite a bit after all this time and it keeps him in a stagnant state of being.

LIKES/DISLIKES

Likes: Cuddling; being adored; the quiet; alcohol; performing/dancing; his occupation

Dislikes: Water; being interrogated; being disrespected; his boundaries/rules being broken; his occupation

STRENGTHS/WEAKNESSES

Strengths: His charisma, flexibility, shrewdness, and size

Weaknesses: Alcohol, his lust, his size

EXTRA

1. When in lovey-dovey mood, he speaks in 3rd person ["Eros likes his drinks fruity and sweet~"]
2. Eros is currently the only one of his species that can asexually reproduce [there's only him and his two offspring at this time]. He doesn't need another Enfield to lay egg[s], it's just magic! These traditional hatchings, which only occur once a year in Spring [usually in the month of East- and yes it's misspelled on purpose] in which for that time period he is basically genderbent in order to oviposit. The babies that hatch are 100% surprises- colour patterns and body design are random to my tastes. Though this tradition is still fairly new, it has the possibility to skip a year or come to an end.
3. Eros can only asexually reproduce and cannot be impregnated by either his own species or any other species. [I say this because he is the only one of the 3 that is able to reproduce in any form]. Nor is he able to impregnate his own or other species. His species is too much a fucked mess mix of things that it just doesn't work that way.
4. The offsprings' birthdays/hatchdays are when i finalized their designs, and how many years they are apart is obsolete because they both are peoples' realtime aliases and are aged to their liking. But Zenii came first.
5. The first drawing in his image section is how he actually looks, as i usually draw him rather stylized otherwise, to fit with his personality.

RANDOM FACT!

Fancy Enfield offspring are supposed to separate from the parent after a short while- usually after being weaned into an age where they can survive on their own. This is a very young age for them- since Fancy Enfields are capable of living for centuries - Decades of staying the same 'age,' which explains why Eros is forever 22.
