

TV live stream websites for /r/TropicalWeather

By /u/dialhoang

Introduction

This document collects websites for local television live streams to allow users to look into live storm coverage from across the country. Due to limits on the author's knowledge, this initial edition only covers American television stations.

Most of these streams come from affiliates of the "Big 4" networks (ABC, CBS, FOX, and NBC), although where relevant, strong independent/fifth network stations and local cable news channels have been included. The streams have been organized by media market, starting in southern Texas, going across the Gulf coast to Florida, and then turning north along the Atlantic to Maine. Stations in Hawai'i and Guam are then posted to allow for coverage of cyclones in the Pacific. Within each market, television stations are listed in order of virtual channel. Where possible a specific link to a live stream page is given, if this is not available a link to a video page or the station home page is substituted instead. Stations with the same owner within a market (including stations which have different owners but are operated by the same entity, and situations where one station produces news for another) are grouped in one table row. Facebook and YouTube links are included only if the station is known to use these platforms for live streaming during severe weather events. In some areas, notes are added to give further commentary. In addition, a bold "NewsON" in the links section means that station coverage is available on the NewsON app.

Additions and modifications to the document are encouraged by commenting or messaging /u/dialhoang on Reddit.
