Teaching Philosophy Of Anthony D. Barfield II

As an educator, one must have a genuine love of students. As a Music educator, one must take that genuine love for students and enhance it with music. As a musician, my love for music is endless. I have embarked on a wonderfully fulfilled life from both, my love of students combined with an intense love of music.

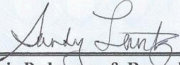

During my matriculation at Bethune-Cookman University, and my experiences here in Palm Beach County, I have gained the knowledge needed to educate others in ways that are acceptable, easy, and fun. My mission and philosophy as an educator is simple, "If I can learn music, then I can teach music and then together we can play music."

I would like to influence young musicians in the same manner as my professors and band directors have influenced me through the years. When the importance of the music fundamentals are gained, then we all can play together as one symphony.
