- 1) Anya earns her income through sex work. Last week, a client punched her and threatened to kill her if he saw her again. She said that her client said she “tricked” him, because she did not disclose that she is trans. She is terrified for her life and also does not want to get the police involved due to the nature of her job. She asks you what she should do, given that she can’t and doesn’t want to quit her work.
- 2) A 16 year old AFAB nonbinary person is brought in by zir mother. The young person confirms zir assault, but is clearly uncomfortable with the name and pronouns the mother is using to refer to zem. The young person is wearing an armband with blue, white, and pink stripes. Ze discloses to you that zir father assaulted zem in effort to, in zir words, “fix me.” Zir mother insists, “It’s not about her gender.”
- 3) Owen calls seeking support after an uncomfortable situation with their girlfriend Cathy’s husband, John. Owen has set firm boundaries with John about not wanting to be touched by John when the three of them are in bed together, and John won’t keep his hands to himself. Owen is worried that they won’t be taken seriously because they are in a polyamorous relationship, but needs support processing their experience, so has decided to reach out for help anyway.
