

SL: More eyeballs

[given name],

No, this is not an email about how to put more seeing holes in your face.

Though that would be cool, I'm talking about getting people's peepers fixed on [name]

Your [compliment] stole my attention without me even realizing it.

As it turns out, I have a lead magnet that will grip new and experienced archers' optic nerves and lure them to your sales page, where you have full control.

Think of it like selling [product] from a public sidewalk compared to a showroom.

It could be very dangerous. It's not healthy for the ol' orbs to be stuck to a screen like that.

I figured I could trust you with this secret power, so I pasted an example below this email.

If you think this wouldn't be too risky for archery hunters' soul windows, reply with a simple "Yes," and we can discuss further details.

With Energy,

Shaine

Proceed With Caution 🖐️👁️