Synopsis:

A person stands on the edge of a roof, staring down at the far ground below, ready to embrace it soon. That is until out of the corner of their eye, they see a doorway connected to nothing on the rooftop.

Curiously they open the door and step into the other side. Which is undoubtedly the worst decision they have ever made.

Now trapped in a strange liminal space, it becomes clear that something somewhere wants to torment them. Is there a way out? And if there is — will one be able to leave still intact?
