

Dear,

We care deeply about providing [child name] with a screen-free environment at home. During the weekly iReady practice sessions, we ask that [child name] use paper alternatives during the time the kids are on the tablets. Whether that be a physical book, a paper worksheet, or any other non screen-based activity that makes sense.

We are happy to provide any support to make this as light a lift as possible. We are ok with her taking the electronic diagnostic test three times a year, but otherwise formally request that she be given paper alternatives for all activities related to iReady.

I am happy to discuss this request with you further and thank you deeply for your thoughtful consideration.

Thank you,
