GUIDELINES

BASICS

Hello. My name is Riv, 25 years old and located in timezone GMT+1. I'm not a fast person with my replies. I have bad brain chemistry that occasionally keeps me from writing from several days in a row. I also have a real life job.

FOLLOWING

I don't like it when people repeatedly follow and unfollow to get my attention. I check out everyone who follows me, sometimes I'm very slow. If I follow your blog it's because I'm interested in writing together and because I see ideas for our muses to interact.

TRIGGERS

Any possibly triggering content will be tagged as 'tw (...)', if there's something that upsets you which I forgot to tag, please let me know! I want everyone to be safe on their own dash. My triggers are: nazism, terrorism, gaslighting/emotional manipulation, guilt tripping.

SOURCES

I pull inspiration for Scott from a variety of sources. I adapt my portrayal to the person I'm writing with, so I can adapt to (X)MCU only blogs, as well as comics only blogs! I'm still in the process of catching up on comics, so feel free to double check before writing a starter/ask how far I got!

QUESTIONS ABOUT THIS DOC?

Drop me an ask or message on Tumblr! Sometimes my brain is chaotic and contradicts itself. So if you ever catch a mistake or something you don't understand, please poke me!

WRITING

I try to match the length of my replies with my writing partner. I can go from one-liners to multiple paragraphs, depending on what kind of thread we have going on. I'm a sucker for writing multiple things with the same person at the same time. I use very basic formatting in my replies, and I don't care if you don't use it. Each their own blog.

REBLOGGING

Please reblog any memes, musings, gifsets, whatever, etc. from the source or resource! In 99% of all cases, I reblog something from the source or a RP resource, so you just have to reblog from the blog I took it from. This blog is NOT a RP resource blog!

NOT WELCOME ON MY DASH

Faceclaim thirst, god modding, untagged hard porn/NSFW, untagged spoilers, comics vs MCU drama, fandom gatekeeping and elitism, anti mutant/cyclops blog posts, untagged triggers, call out posts.

FACE CLAIMS

Teen Scott: Tye Sheridan
Adult Scott: James Marsden
Comics

PS: I do write with blogs of all fandoms, and fandomless blogs (so I'm not exclusive to only Marvel/X-Men). There's always ways to make things work between our muses!

ADDITIONAL NOTES

MADELYNE PRYOR

Unlike others (maybe), I like to keep her around in Scott's canon. After all, she did give him a son, and she is part of a vital antagonist in Scott's life (Mister Sinister). This means I will write with a Maddie if I ever see one around. This also means that she may get mentioned in a thread. If you don't like that, you can let me know of course!

SHIPS

I'm very big on chemistry, because Scott isn't an easy muse when it comes to shipping. I can't and I won't throw him at just anyone who comes knocking in my askbox. I need chemistry, and I want to be friends with my shipping partners. I'm not here to ship with someone I never talk to OOC and wake up one day to figure out they abandoned their blog altogether. I've been there, it sucks.

I'm game for most canon/fanon things, as well as things that aren't canon/fanon at all or not even the same fandom! As long as there's enough CHEMISTRY between our muses in order for Scott to fall in love, it'll do.

If you're like "oh god I ship this", just yell it at my face. I suck terribly at reading between the lines. If you ship it, tell me. We can plot and figure things out and make it happen.

90's CYCLOPS & PSYLOCKE

I don't acknowledge it. It never happened according to how I write Scott, because it always came across as disrespectful towards Psylocke, Scott and Jean Grey. Psylocke is one of Scott's team mates on X-Men Blue. She looks up to him and respects him as her team leader. The dynamic they tried to put between them in terms of romance just feels incredibly off to me, and thus I've chosen not to use it in my portrayal. I will write with Psylocke muses, but this dynamic is NOT a standard. It'll require plotting/chemistry.
