

This is an archival forum from the FamilySearch Wiki Contributors' Corner Forum

24.02.2011, 12:01

randyhoffman

Sandbox category

I'm working on practice exercises for a training in the wiki. My current idea is to have the exercises build on one another. In the first, they will make their sandbox, paste a large amount of text, format the text, and categorize it. The next few lessons will have them slowly build on that page.

So my question is: would there be a problem with creating a Sandbox category for them to add their page to? I suppose they can add to a category that doesn't exist, but I'd prefer a real one.

24.02.2011, 17:40

VasquezJL

Is this the category you are looking for?

<https://wiki.familysearch.org/en/Category:Sandbox>

Great idea.

24.02.2011, 21:16

randyhoffman

 thanks

Well I feel a little silly. Thanks for the help.

25.02.2011, 08:35

jenson1

I think this would be helpful.

25.02.2011, 10:44

VasquezJL

No problem, I've done things like that myself. 😊 There are a lot of sandbox pages not currently using that category.