If you give a score higher than 5 and you cannot cite at least THREE specific details from the draft to justify that score, I'm going to deduct one point from YOUR peer review grade for Deadline 12. If you give a score lower than 5 and can cite TWO specific things the writer needs to work on for this category, I'll award you an extra point towards YOUR peer review grade for Deadline 12. If your overall peer review grade for this assignment exceeds 20, I'll apply the additional points towards recent missing and/or low-rated blog posts. I reserve the right not to award points for under-explained or banal feedback.

Your rating for audience: 7

Please explain the reason for your score in at least 3 to 5 clear sentences. Cite specific details from the rough draft to explain your score:

You did a really good job of connecting the issue to your audience. Your word choice and explanation of facts really geared the reader to agree with your argument, and your opinion is very strong. There is still room for improvement, as you can maybe add more opinionated statements.

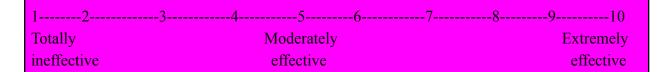

Purpose

What kind of public argument do you think this is? Check one (and only one) of the argument types below:

This argument establishes an original pro position on an issue of debate This argument establishes an original con position on an issue of debate This argument clarifies the causes for a problem that is being debated This argument proposes a solution for a problem that is being debated This argument positively evaluates a specific solution or policy under debate (and clearly identifies the idea I'm supporting) This argument openly refutes a specific solution or policy under debate (and clearly identifies the idea I'm refuting). How effectively do you feel this draft achieves the purpose for the argument type you identified above, on a scale of 1 to 10? Refer back to the type descriptions in the instructions for Blog Post 10.7 if needed.

from the rough draft to explain your score:
Your argument type is very apparent. The pro position is supported by facts and reasoning, especially when you ask a rhetorical question. It is so clear that you support the continuation of this type of research, so you're pretty good in that department, I would just add more, maybe ask more rhetorical questions to get your point across.
Argumentation
Refresh your me	emory about the three different kinds o	f rhetorical strategies we read about for Project 2: Emotional appeals, Ethical or credibility-building appeals, and Logical or rational appeals.

How effectively do you feel this draft uses rhetoric to make its argument? This might mean balancing different kinds of appeals, doubling down on one category or something else. There's lots and lots of different ways authors can use these strategies... So, what do you think of how this draft made use of these three categories of appeals, on a scale of 1 to 10?

If you give a score higher than 5 and you cannot cite at least THREE specific details from the draft to justify that score, I'm going to deduct one point from YOUR peer review grade for Deadline 12. Your rating for argumentation: 5

You use a lot of rhetorical strategies to get your point across, and you do it well. There is a ton of logical appeals being used, and then you tie it back into an ethical appeal by asking the rhetorical question of, is this right to do so? There is also a large part of emotional appeal that can be used, maybe to add to the fact that this type of research could save many lives.

Genre

You will need to read/look at the hyperlinked examples in the student author's Blog Post 11.3 in order to rate this category.

How effectively do you feel this draft follows the genre conventions established by the examples they linked us to in Blog Post 11.3, on a scale of 1 to 10? Try to keep in mind that this is about how well this draft would fit - visually and tonally - on the specific website the student author is designing their argument for.

Your rating for genre: 8

You follow the guidelines of this genre very well. The paragraphs are short and sweet, maybe consider adding white space. The article itself is well-written, with lots of information present in a very friendly manner.
