

A Fragment of Understanding

Boon. Type: Blessing (Minor)

You can speak to a creature in the language of the universe. When you talk to a creature that can understand a language they can understand you regardless of what languages they speak.

My Only Friend

Bane. Type: Curse

You become attached to one person and only that one person. A friendly creature of the DMs choice becomes your "only friend". While this creature is alive any time they take damage you take 1d8 psychic damage. If this creature were to die you become distraught and suffer 2 levels of exhaustion with no way of removing these effects apart from removing this curse.

Laughing Powder

Boon. Type: Blessing (Major)

You gain the ability to laugh off fatigue and other impairments on your body. When you fail a save against any effect that would give the Incapacitated, Paralyzed, Petrified, or Stunned condition you may attempt the save again. You must take the new roll. You may use this ability equal to your Constitution modifier.

Petal Blossom

Bane. Type: Disease

Lilac petals start to cover your body as an omen of a fatal fate. At the end of a long rest you must succeed a DC 15 Constitution Save or gain one more level of Petal Blossoms. Each level of Petal Blossoms reduces Piercing, Slashing, Bludgeoning, and Psychic damage by your constitution modifier as your body is covered in petals. At 3 levels of Petals Blossoms you gain advantage on Wisdom saving throws as your mind slowly becomes blank. At 6 levels you instantly die as your entire body is covered in petals before turning to dust.

Fervent Adoration

Bane. Type: Curse

The endless silent noise drowns out all thought of who is friend and who is foe. You can not consider any creature to be an ally or an enemy. Other creatures can not see you as an ally or an enemy but can still see you as hostile. While in combat you hit the last creature that hit you. If there is not a creature that has hit you before or if that creature is untargetable then you hit the creature closest to you.