

Please note that this is NOT a quiz. But, hint hint, you WILL have a Tribe quiz soon.

Instead, this exercise is meant to help you think about your next blog post, which will be a collaborative response to bots and/or generative texts.

1. The goal is to write about the assigned text generators using as many of the following words and phrases (or variations of the following) as are appropriate:

Generative text	Text generator	bot
Born digital	digitized	authorship
Intellectual property	code	language
literature	Meaning	Composition

2. In three sentences, describe, explain, or summarize “Sea and Spar Between.”
3. In three sentences, describe, explain, or summarize “Evolution.”
4. Paste a screenshot of each piece with a brief description into your doc.
5. For each piece, try to answer the following question from as many perspectives as you can think of: Who is the “author” of the piece? Who is ultimately responsible for the text that we readers read?

Hang on to the document you generate in response to today’s materials. You’ll likely refer back to it in the process of writing your third blog post.
