“Christ, because he is the WORD of God, is the true source of revelation. Sacred Scripture and Tradition are modes in which revelation is handed on and thus are not ‘sources’ in the same sense as Christ is, but rather sources in the sense of means of transmitting revelation.

Without diminishing the importance of Sacred Scripture as an obligatory witness to revelation, what all this means for the self-understanding of Christianity is that... Christianity is not a ‘religion of the book’... The Church’s faith is concerned first and foremost with a personal relationship to Jesus Christ, who in the Holy Spirit reestablishes fellowship among us with the Father.”

From Meet Henri De Lubec, His Life and Work, by Rudolf Vonderholzer, published by Ignatius; pages 170, 171.
