MBA Courses List: MBA Admission 2024

Getting into a B-school usually involves taking an entrance test. These tests for MBA programs can fall into different categories:

1. National-Level Tests

These are conducted by a top national B-school or a central testing body on behalf of other colleges, such as CAT, MAT, CMAT, or ATMA.

2. State-Level Tests

Organised by a state-level testing authority or a leading state B-school, these tests are for colleges within that state, like MAH-CET, OJEE, KMAT, TANCET, or APICET.

3. Institute-Level Tests

Individual B-schools hold these for their own MBA programs. Some scores from these tests may be accepted by other institutions, such as XAT, NMAT, SNAP, and IBSAT.

4. University-Level Tests

These are conducted by universities for MBA programs offered by their affiliated colleges, like KIITEE, LUMET, and HPU MAT.

5. Second round of selection:

It usually includes a Written Ability Test (WAT), Group Discussion (GD), and Personal Interview (PI). The final selection is based on the candidate's academic record, entrance exam performance, and WAT-GD-PI results.
