Backstory: She grew up with her mother, father, and older brother in middle class neighborhood. Her mother was in real estate and her father is a photographer. Her older brother is 3 years older than her. She first discovered her quirk when she was about 5 years olds she was being picked on by some older boys who had already gotten their quirk. They were super proud of their quirks and thought they were the best. She made a comment about their quirk not being all that great and the boys didn't take too kindly to her comment and tried to attack her. They backed her into a corner and were about to attack her, but she quickly put up her hands in an attempt to block, but a barrier appeared in front of her and blocked the attacks quite easily. The boy were quite shocked to see this and quickly retreated. She always loved fairy tales and mythical creatures, so she would try and make bigger things from the stories she read. She learned she could make anything she imagined in her head using light energy. As time went one she learned she could create energy bolts and could make small objects like crystals that will stay physical for good unlike her barriers which can only stay up as long as she is focused on them. Around 12 years old she had been practicing more and more. She learned she could make platforms that could help her reach higher places. She decided one day to try and make wings on her back that could actually let her fly like the angels she read about in stories and she did though she did end up crashing but she practiced more and more and got quite adept at it. When she was 13 she was on her way home when she saw a bombing had occurred some pro heroes were busy dealing with villains and another explosion occurred and there were some civilians who were about to be hit by falling debris. The pros were too busy dealing with the villains, so she leaped into action and ran through the crowd and managed to get close enough to put up a barrier above the civilians and blocked the rubble. She quickly told them to run to which they happily escaped. The pros managed to beat the villains, but after the pros scolded her heavily and was nearly arrested, but she defended her actions stating she didn't break any laws because she didn't injure the villains at all and merely protected the civilians. She was let off with a warning and her parents were informed of her actions. Though as the years passed she ended getting stuck in many similar situations where she used her quirk to help with rescues. She usually managed to get off with a warning or slipping away before being spotted. Rumors spread throughout the city that there was some sort of "Angel" that protected civilians in dangerous situations. She took a liking to the name and thus the vigilante Angel was born. She applied at UA to get in she wanted to continue to save people.
