

Private Chef Algarve

research: The website is fine, but their social media management is horrible. They post like every 3 weeks.

Dream state: Make Portuguese food and have American notoriety, cash-flow

Current state: they are focused on the cooking part, more than the development.

Outreach

Hi Matthew,

Portuguese food is globally underrated in my opinion, your culture combined with your taste in food makes everything amazing.

I would like to give the world the opportunity to taste your meals.

As a chef, your primary focus should be the cooking part. You can go nowhere without your skills, but you wouldn't go very far if you didn't have the right marketing development crew.

Having a team that works for your benefit with the true intention of making your business known globally is powerful.

You are going to have the chance to work for free with the help of a marketing specialist to make Private Chef Algarve bigger.

Helping people grow is the way I have found to help me grow with my skillset, this is why you are going to have the opportunity for literally nothing to make your business grow.

The definition of chance is: being at the right moment to take the right opportunity for you, so you have today the chance to make more revenue!

Matthew, are you going to let go of the help of a marketing expert?

Wilkins Saintil