

Carion Chu was born in Hong Kong. Her fascination with the sound of the double bass beckoned her to take up the instrument when she was a teenager. She immediately joined local youth orchestra and other groups. She studied at the Royal Northern College of Music in England with Rodney Slatford, and various courses in Italy studied with Franco Petracchi. She had performed in England, France, Israel, Cypress, Australia, Italy, US and Canada. In 1988 Carion moved to the Boston area and is known to both symphonic and chamber music audiences. She is currently principal bass with Cape Cod Symphony, also perform with Plymouth Philharmonic, Symphony by the sea and South Florida Symphony. She lives in Milton, Massachusetts.