the minimum elements to include int the blog
de VELASCO MUÑOZ WILLIAM - jueves, 22 de junio de 2023, 11:47

It is important that the portfolio is well presented, legible and understandable and maintains a visual style. In addition to this, from my point of view I think the following elements could be included.

1. A thank you section for the visit
2. A short introduction, a definition of the person, something like who am I?
3. Information about the person, their process and their experience within the field they are in, I think academic experience could be taken into account (I think this could replace "work experience" for now).
4. Work demonstrations, in this case, you could present some academic projects or something about your college career where over the semesters you have or are discovering what interests you most. That is to say, the branch of your profession with which through your university career you feel more identified and say with conviction "this is my thing". (This can be developed within the previous point).
5. Share the skills developed and accomplishments achieved throughout those experiences mentioned.
6. Ways to contact the person, such as email, optionally you could include linkedin and/or twitter.

I think that it is a good elements for Blog. "Work demonstration" is strong point of the portfolio and the opportunity to demonstrate our skills. Also, I belive included at the end of Blog the section "personal references", that means " Personal references is a brief assessment of you as an individual provided by someone who knows you outside of work".

I agree with you William.

The design, visual style and "technical" aspects such as readability and comprehensibility (I don't know if you can call it "technical" jajaja) are maintained throughout the website - or at least in the entries of each blog - as this offers you a good reader experience

Yes Luisa jajaj, you can call it "technical". Those technical aspects that you mention help us to help other people have a better observability of what we are sharing about us with them. It's a way to make them feel comfortable navigating our blogs.

minimum elements that a blog must have

de MOSQUERA BALANTA GUSTAVO ADOLFO - jueves, 22 de junio de 2023, 18:56

I believe that these are the minimum elements that a blog should have:

1. Title: Each blog post should have a title that accurately reflects the content of the post.
2. Text Content: The main body of the blog post where you share your thoughts, ideas, or information.
3. Images: You can include relevant images to enhance the visual appeal and engagement of your blog post.
4. Links: You can add hyperlinks to other websites or sources to provide additional information or references.
5. Formatting: You can use text editing tools to format your blog post, such as bold, italic, bullet points, etc.

Although the format helps exponentially, I do not think it is something that yes or yes should be included. Personally, I would replace it (or failing that, I would prioritize it) with a comments section, since this gives an approach to the reader since it is this one who is going to have an experience with your blog.

Maybe the links, is not a minimum element, It is an additional information and something that is not about your Blog, because you have to leave the Blog and visit others internet sites for this purpose.

de VELASCO MUÑOZ WILLIAM - sábado, 1 de julio de 2023, 22:44

I agree with you on point 5. from my point of view it is very important to give a good format to the blog, the styles of the blog generate an impact on the person who visits the blog. So it is very important to choose a good font for the text, a moderate text size and use other formats in the text, if and when it is necessary.

Rincon Quiroz Luisa Maria:

The minimum elements to include in a blog, personally should be:

de RINCON QUIROZ LUISA MARIA - jueves, 29 de junio de 2023, 20:22

(apart from the name of the blog):

- (1) Personal information: This is in the form of a CV, where the user can find out who we are, what we do, our experience, references, skills, ways to contact us.
- (2) Introduction to the theme/contents of the blog: This is so that the reader has an idea of what kind of content they will find on our blog.
- (3) Content: the specific blogs that will be uploaded over time
- (4) Comments: I think it is very important to have comments and ratings, because ultimately these are the ones that help the blog grow, since they are the experiences of the readers

EXTRA: Regarding a specific entry (those who are working at Blogger.com will know what I mean by "Entry"), it is important to have interactive, visual-auditory content and links that help the user with their experience

The minimum elements to include in the blog are:

An attractive name to the blog that let people make an idea of what could they find on it.

A subsection with the profile that shows your experience, skills and other kind of information related with prior training.

A blog description in a subsection that describes in a deep way what can be seen.

A subsection where you organize all the work you have done; for example, you can put links, photographs and videos.

A contact section where email or other social media is posted to give people a way to communicate.

The blog such as format to show our curriculum vitae (CV) . In my opinion and with the answer of the partners I saw. the elements could be:

- Welcome page
- Blog Header and Blog Title
- Personal Information:
 - Introduction about yourself, such as a short bio section.
 - contact and connect with you in social sharing buttons.
 - Work demonstration: 3 - 5 of your best projects
 - Work experience (if you had)
 - Personal references.

And the other elements that Laura, Camilo, William and the other colleagues shared with us, which shows visual comfort of the Blog.

I think that the minimum elements that a blog should include are:

- An introduction so people can get to know a little about us, especially about our soft and hard skills.
- Images, videos, documents, among others, that can show our work or our capabilities.
- Ways to contact us: This with the aim that people interested in our work, or in us, can communicate with us.

de LEON RODRIGUEZ LAURA STEPHANIA - jueves, 22 de junio de 2023, 10:12

The minimum elements to include in the blog are:

- Welcome page (a warm welcome is the better way to build trust on new visitors).
- Blog Header (it is about the identification of your blog).
- Navigation bar (it helps visitors move comfortably).
- Right sidebar (it is the guide for visitors).
- Search bar (it helps to find something easily).
- Social sharing buttons (in that way you help your content spread on Social Media).
- Visual content (it will catch visitors attention).
- Blog archive (classification your publications for categories, dates, etc).
- About the author.

Minimum elements for a Blog
de ACOSTA DOMINGUEZ CAMILO ALEJANDRO - jueves, 22 de junio de 2023, 08:55

I consider the following elements are minimum to include in the blog:

1. Introduction: In this section we have to consider this subelements, these are:

- Blog Title: We have to select a Good title. It will describe the content and catch the attention.
- Personal Information: Introduce yourself and share a part of your biography and contact information like email address or telephone number.

2. A great Homepage: This is the first thing the people will see in your blog, so it's important to write a good welcoming to introduce us and our abilities.

3. Organized Blog Posts: Are the most important part of your blog, we have to organize our content, works and projects in categories, it should have a good visual space like images and interesting design
