

Digimon Fire Emblem XrossOver

This is a document made for my Project of "Digimon Fire Emblem XrossOver" in which I give Digital Monsters partners to Fire Emblem character

So far there is no story, and if it had one, at most it would be a simple premise of "The characters were sent in to the Digimon World and met their partners, setting on an adventure"

This is set in a Modern AU

Each of them will have a digivice and a digimon partner that will be shown with them

Basics of Digimon: What is Digimon?

Digimon, also known as Digital Monsters, is franchise that was created by the same creators of Tamagotchi, it was created to aim for a "Boy" demographic because tamagotchi was seen as a "Girls" toy on those times

Digimon are digital creatures, they live in the "Digital World" a vastly different place from the Real world, not only do digimon coexist with each other like in real life nature, but also the "laws" of our world do not apply on the Digital world. There is almost no damage from falling from high places, you can breathe underwater, you can find modern cities and villages all over the place, you can even find meat growing out of the ground!

Digimon can evolve into others, they have "evolution stages" that are "acquired" by different means.

These stages are: Baby I - Baby II - Child - Adult - Perfect - Ultimate (For this document we will only focus on from "Child" onwards)

There is also 2 extra stages that depend from digimon to digimon:

Super Ultimate: a form that makes digimon go even further than their previous "Ultimate" limit

"X" Mode: some digimon can acquire a certain mode when they are evolving (they are not considered Super Ultimate for the most part) an example would the digimon Dukemon, who can change to "Dukemon: Crimson mode"

Digimon have also 4 main attributes, those being: Neutral, Vaccine, Virus and Base
Neutral is not affected by anything.

Vaccine is strong against Virus, Virus is strong against Base, Base is strong against Vaccine

Digimon get more powerful if they have a partner, especially if they have a digivice to canalize their power in their digimon.

Tamers

Tamer is what a human partnering with a digimon is
They use their digivices to help the digimon in various ways and have a great connection with digimon

Basics of Evolution

The Evolution of Digimon (Digi-Evolution/Digivolution) can be done in different ways with different methods, some of the are:

Natural Evolution: It is done, like the name, Naturally

When a digimon absorbs enough Data from other Digimon, depending on what kind of Data, environment and/or innate power they have, they will evolve into a certain digimon (Ex: if a digimon absorbs Dragon Digimon Data, it will evolve into a Dragon Digimon). In this type of evolution, in theory, every digimon can evolve or devolve into any other digimon

“Digivice” Evolution: This Evolution is only achieved by partnering with a Human with a Digivice, a device that can store data, items, digimon and more.

It is said that the bond a Human and a digimon have can make them evolve into a certain, more “orthodox” path, especially if the digimon is well taken care of

Warp Evolution: To add to the normal evolution methods, Digimon can also evolve from their Child stage to their Ultimate stage with the “Warp evolution”. This is usually done with a partner Tamer with strong feelings and emotions, although in some cases it can be done naturally

Jogress: Jogress is a term that means “Fusion”. This event happens when two digimon fuse together to create a new one, and it retains the same Evolution Stage as the fused Digimon (the most known example: The digimon Wargreymon and Metalgarurumon are digimon in the “Ultimate” stage, when they fuse, they transform into Omegamon, on the same Evolution Stage “Ultimate”)

Jogress Evolution: Unlike the before seen “normal” Jogress, Jogress evolution is when two digimon fuse to become a digimon with a higher evolution stage (well known Example: XV-Mon and Stingmon are both in the “Adult” stage, when they fuse, they become “Paildramon” which is a “Perfect” digimon)

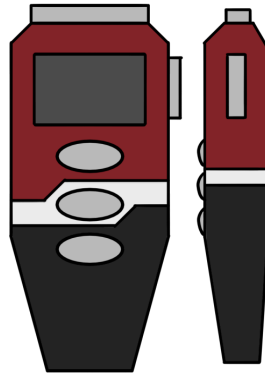

X-Antibody: Evolutions for certain digimon that come in contact with the “X-Antibody” program (for some digimon it can affect every part of their evolution line, while for others it affects one stage in particular).

Digisoul: a power that humans and digimon have, not everyone can harness its power, but if they do, the power of both digimon and human will increase. This allows for strong Digivolutions, but it is not mandatory, it’s a way.

Dark Evolution: This only happens when a Tamer is filled with dark thoughts and emotions, forcing a dark evolution and thus, changing the digimon’s evolution path to a “dark” one

Digivices: DX1

The digivice DX1 looks like this:

It's functions are:

Being able to Evolve Partner Digimon in different ways (seen in the section before)

The Top of the digivice is a scanner for DigiSoul

The button at the side is used to “store” and “Realize” a digimon, it’s a way for them to rest in a more secure way, but not needed unless in extreme conditions. It can also store food and items and realize them too.

The three buttons from top to bottom are:

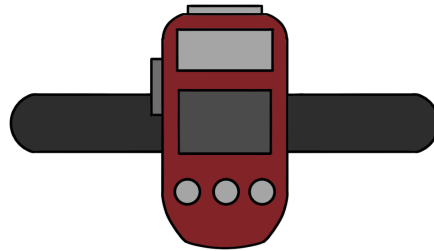

A Scanner for digimon

A map feature of their surrounding

A “Telephone” function (must have met and trade data with other digivice first)

DX2

This is how DX2 looks like:

Its functions are the same as the normal DX1, but these are bracelets instead of phone-like objects.

In this new order the functions are

The button on the side is used to realize and store objects and digimon, which is done by aiming with the top of the digivice (unlike the DX1 which can be done only by the screen)

The screen on the middle is to see the objects and digimon status

On top of the screen is the scanner for DigiSoul

The buttons from left to right are:

First: Scanner Function

Second: Map Function

Third: Phone Function
