Community: I believe it is beneficial for the tennis athlete to be part of a larger group, including one's family, team, club, the local community and the broader tennis community.

Respect: I value showing consideration for oneself and the members of your various communities.

Acceptance: ...of oneself and others on and off the court. Accepting one's own and others' level of play at any given moment. Accepting our mistakes and recognizing them as an opportunity to learn what areas of our game we could work on.

Virtue: I place great importance on conducting oneself with integrity on and off the court.

Effort: I believe in trying, taking risks, working hard and most importantly having fun!

These are values that you can expect of me and that I encourage in the athletes that I work with on and off the court.
