

Each of the events I'm attending this summer will provide me with an opportunity to connect with a slightly different population in education.

Let me know if you plan to be there so we can connect.

@KerryHawk02

www.KerryHawk02.com

ISTE

At ISTE I'll be able to experience the energy of the international education technology community. ISTE is big, rowdy, and unapologetic. I even get to do an Ignite this year. It is a great way to kick off summer.

Edcamp Leadership

At Edcamp Leadership in Massachusetts I'll get to connect with district and school administrators and teacher leaders from around my corner of the country. We often connect via social media and see one another at regional conferences that are more formal, but the Edcamp model lets us have the conversations we want to have. Rather than arrive at a conference that has already been set up by someone else, we determine the path of our professional learning that day. Looking for an Edcamp near you this summer, check out the foundation website for upcoming dates and locations.

Leader to Leader

At Leader to Leader with ASCD, I'm looking forward to joining a vibrant group of up and coming leaders in education to talk about breaking the mold in schools. The agenda is sure to bring us together to share our struggles, inspirations, and ideas for two solid days.

CUE Rock Star Camp

Rock Star camps bring together a small number of attendees with energetic faculty members at a two day event that guarantees participants they will be doing hands-on tasks that will carry over to their practice at school. The energy and free flow of ideas is hard to match at any other professional learning event. I'm fortunate enough to be a faculty member for the Bedford, Massachusetts camp in August.