A little warning: We're going to ask you for money on October 8.

But it's for a pretty great reason.

Local LGBTQ+ Media Giving Day supports the newsrooms reporting on our communities every single day.

Save the date. We'll see you October 8.  <https://givebutter.com/LGBTQMediaGivingDay2026>

LGBTQ+ stories deserve more than one month a year.

Local LGBTQ+ journalists tell them 365 days a year.

On October 8, we get a chance to support that work.

We'd love to say journalism runs on coffee and queer determination.

Unfortunately, the electric company remains stubbornly committed to accepting money.

When decisions affecting LGBTQ+ people are made in city halls, statehouses, school boards and courtrooms, local journalists are there.

Local LGBTQ+ Media Giving Day is a chance to support the newsrooms doing that work every day. <https://givebutter.com/LGBTQMediaGivingDay2026>

Our community deserves journalism that knows our names, understands our history and pays attention to what's happening in our own backyard.

That's what local LGBTQ+ media does.

Help keep it going this Local LGBTQ+ Media Giving Day.

Your ex doesn't need another text.

Your local LGBTQ+ newsroom could use $20, though.

Just saying.

Happy Local LGBTQ+ Media Giving Day. 🌈 <https://givebutter.com/LGBTQMediaGivingDay2026>

National headlines get attention.

But LGBTQ+ life happens locally.

It happens at school board meetings, Pride celebrations, neighborhood businesses, city councils, community centers and around kitchen tables.

Support the journalists telling those stories. <https://givebutter.com/LGBTQMediaGivingDay2026>

"But I can only give $10."

Perfect. We like $10.

We also like $5. And $20. And $50.

Local LGBTQ+ Media Giving Day isn't about who can give the most. It's about our community showing up for the journalism created for us.
<https://givebutter.com/LGBTQMediaGivingDay2026>

LGBTQ+ media has documented our community through protests, celebrations, victories and losses.

That history is still being written.

Help local LGBTQ+ journalists keep writing it.

We're still here.

Still reporting.

Still asking questions.

Still telling LGBTQ+ stories.

And with your support, we'll keep doing it.
