Bed Bug Exterminator Learn How to Get Rid of Those Irritating Pests

The Cimex lectularius L, better known as "mahogany flat" or the bed bug, can live up to one year with a steady supply of human blood to feed on. This is the only species of its kind that have adapted to living with humans and feeding on their blood. They also feed on other warm blooded hosts like animals and pets. These are small parasites that measure about 3/16th inch long, are flat, and have a reddish color to them. There are times when they feed unnoticed.

Studies have shown that bed bugs have been linked to insomnia, anemia, and even psychological and emotional problems. One who is constantly being bitten by these bugs may have disturbed sleep and steady feeding might be the reason for low blood count especially in children. Psychological and emotional problems arise due to being affected by the unsightly welts and itching that may remain after bites.

They thrive in bed sheets, cracks in furniture, bed boards, and even picture frames. It is a public health issue since many of them can also be found in hotels and where people rest such as the traveling lounge. These small oval shaped blood suckers can lay up to 500 eggs while they live. Homeowners can practice simple ways to catch bed bugs before there is a big infestation. A professional exterminator will also be able to rid one's home of these insects, but before opening the wallet, read on to learn ways to be a bed bug exterminator:

- 1. Keep an eye out for reddish brown insects on the mattress and bed sheets. It is also worthwhile to look at the seams where they may grow.
- 2. Look under the mattress and around the furniture or small spaces within 5 feet from the bed during the day. The bedbug is most busy at night, but during the day, one might find them hiding in those areas.
- 3. Do not put the luggage on the bed or on the floor. They are known to stick or catch a ride in traveling bags. Keeping the luggage away from the bed will prevent them from jumping onto the mattress and sleeping areas. As much as possible, keep luggages in separate places away from the bedroom. On another side note, it is also worthwhile to inspect luggage frequently especially after traveling and to keep it organized and clean.
- 4. Wash bed sheets in the hottest temperature.
- 5. Be wary of buying 2nd hand furniture as bed bugs may be living within the cracks. Inspect it carefully before buying.
- 6. After invited guests leave the home, inspect the room carefully and wash all beddings as stated above.
- 7. Practice a sanitary and clutter free environment. In this way, bed bugs will have fewer places to hide and will make it easier to spot. Guard your family by practicing these simple bed bug exterminator tips.

Bed Bug Treatment & Control By Local Exterminators Once you've identified the indicators of a bed bug infestation, our knowledgeable bed bug exterminators offer you the finest bed bug removal. Bed bug infestations are notoriously tough to get rid of with over-the-counter products because they may go a year without feeding. A single female adult bed bug can lay 1-10 eggs per day and 200-500 eggs in her lifetime, making it very difficult to locate and eradicate every bedbug. How The Bed Bug Control Service Works. When dealing with treatment for bed bugs, bed bug control is an extensive investigation of all areas like a mattress and needs to be undertaken as their daytime hiding places are broad. Bed bugs may enter a property in a variety of ways including hitching a ride in the crevices of your suitcase when returning from holidays. They may be hiding in second-hand furniture that you purchased, the list of ways they may enter is extensive. How to deal with bed bugs Bed bug treatment by Apex pest control involves applying a suitable and long-lasting residual insecticide to all surfaces and likely areas using a flat fan and crack and crevice sprayer to all bedrooms. This is followed by Ultra Low Volume (ULV) space spray for a quick knockdown effect. In this way, we approach the treatment with a long-term residue and a rapid bedbug control technique. The sooner bed bug extermination begins, the sooner contaminated areas can be treated and our professional exterminators can stop the spread of the bed bug problem. Our staff will inspect the entire home for evidence of a bedbug infestation and will document the spread of the infestation in order to deliver the most effective pest control treatment to help you become bug-free. Apex offers a variety of expert bed bug control treatments, including residual insecticide chemical treatments and chemical-free heat treatments that are specifically designed to efficiently eliminate these pests.
