ABSTRACT

Purpose: This section explains the main objective of the study. It describes what the research aims to achieve, the problem being addressed, and the significance of the study.

Design/Methodology/Approach: This section describes how the research was conducted. It includes the research design, data collection methods, sampling techniques, and data analysis procedures used in the study.

Findings: This section presents the main results of the study. It highlights key discoveries, relationships between variables, and whether the research objectives or hypotheses are supported.

Research Implications: This section explains the contribution of the study to theory and practice. It outlines how the findings can be applied, their relevance to stakeholders, and suggestions for future research.

INTRODUCTION

This section provides the background of the study, outlines the research problem, and explains the significance of the topic. It also presents the research objectives, research questions, and a brief overview of the structure of the paper.

LITERATURE REVIEW

This section reviews relevant theories, concepts, and previous studies related to the research topic. It identifies research gaps, develops the theoretical framework, and formulates hypotheses (if applicable).

METHODS

This section explains how the research was conducted. It includes the research design, population and sample, data collection techniques, research instruments, and data analysis methods used to address the research objectives.

RESULT

This section presents the findings of the study in a clear and systematic manner. It may include tables, figures, and statistical analysis results without interpretation.

DISCUSSION

This section interprets the results by linking them to the research questions, hypotheses, and existing literature. It explains the meaning of the findings, highlights similarities or differences with previous studies, and provides logical arguments.

CONCLUSION

This section summarizes the main findings of the study and answers the research objectives. It may also include recommendations, limitations of the study, and suggestions for future research.
