Background – Current Experience & ranking

Childhood.

Born in the outskirts of Osaka, Kaito lost his mother during birth and his father was absent. His life consisted of being in an orphanage for a while paid for by a "Benefactor". During his childhood he didn't have many people to rely on, he didn't even bother meeting them due to his status in life and Japan's rough social rules. However, he did meet another child with the same type of childhood as him in the orphanage he grew up in: Kyō. Kyō was a rough kid, would get into fights and would always get yelled at. Yet Kaito thought of him as a sibling due to his caring nature around Kaito. Kaito started picking up on his "Big brother" and getting into the same trouble as Kyō, this finally got him in trouble with these "Yakuza" he heard of at the age of 12. Luckily, the man who intervened was the lieutenant of the family Kaito interacted with and gave him a warning. The man realized it was one of the children he fostered at the orphanage he was the "Benefactor" of. This man was known as [REDACTED]. (This is to be undisclosed per Kaito's request). Kaito wanted to repay the man, yet the man said: "No, this is not your calling." This infuriated Kaito and he requested over and over but to no avail.

Uprising.

Kaito Kuze decided to start sparring and “Practicing” on the streets with his new found hobby for boxing. He only wanted this to join his “Hero” Kazuma in the yakuza and his brother who soon joined after his first interaction.

He also got a job at accounting to pay for all his training. Gaining much experience along the way. He did not have a desire for money, yet he knew he wouldn't be able to do much without it.

“Work”

Kaito, age 20 found a job at the "Imperial Japanese Anomalous Matters Examination Agency" Also known as the IJAMEA. (<https://scp-wiki.wikidot.com/ijamea-hub>). Not realizing this was a foundation facility already. It paid well and he had no complaints. Most “anomalous” things he saw were brushed off as “Incidents”. He knew something was off about them but wouldn't learn much until later.

Age 23, Kuze finally was trusted enough to go to SCP-7728 and meet them. He found his old co-workers who he knew died a while ago. “This is... Unbelievable..” He thought to himself. He was inspired by the fact that his co-workers were still alive after death.

Further information about SCP-7728 can be read with proper classification here:

Educational and Professional Background

Skills: Learnt boxing and Accounting at a young age, making him versatile in combative and Non-Combative roles.

Involvement with the SCP Foundation.

After many years of being an “Auditor” for the foundation unknowingly. He was assigned a desk job at age 25. His skills of hand to hand combat made many “Audits” look like fistfights gone wrong, but he was tired and asked his superiors. Surprisingly, in only a span of 10 years he became a Site Advisor for site-50, due to his pride and competitiveness none of his co-workers could stand his blunt personality. Yet he was not there to make friends. He was there to get to the top. During his years as Site-Advisor he’d been requested to make an interview at Site-65, a notably more dangerous site compared to his site-50. He learned English well enough due to his “work”, yet wasn’t very happy. He felt like his co-workers pushed this.

“Fine then, I’ll climb high enough so that you CAN’T move me.” - Kaito Kuze.
