PETITION FOR UCHICAGO TO DECLARE ITSELF A SANCTUARY CAMPUS AND ADD SUBSTANTIAL PROTECTIONS FOR UNDOCUMENTED COMMUNITY MEMBERS

Immigration and Customs Enforcement's recent attack on international students served as yet another example of the persecution that immigrants confront in the United States. This cruel policy, which would have left thousands of international students with no choice but to leave the country, led individuals and institutions to mobilize against ICE; 200+ universities filed an amicus brief which concluded with this rule being rescinded. It is necessary to emphasize that this was not an isolated incident. In a long string of attacks against immigrant communities, the Trump Administration has systematically denied federal assistance to undocumented migrants who bear the brunt of the pandemic's economic impact and published a new DHS rule that makes it significantly harder for asylum seekers to obtain work permits. In addition, the Administration is attempting to revoke Temporary Protected Status \(TPS\) from migrants in need of humanitarian protections and proposing a rule that would violate international law given its egregious changes to asylum. DACA recipients continue to face uncertainty after the Supreme Court's recent ruling; immigration cases remain severely backlogged due to recent USCIS furloughs; and immigrant families live in uncertainty, terrorized by ICE officers who threaten to raid workplaces and look for individuals at their homes, often with unsigned warrants. In a time like this, we have a responsibility to support vulnerable immigrant communities. The University of Chicago is not exempt from this responsibility.

The University of Chicago proclaimed its concern for international students and pledged to immediately work on ways to protect students and make accommodations so they could keep their visas. There was an urgency for protecting them as they are valuable members of the University's community. We support these efforts, but we want to very clearly note that undocumented community members are equally as valuable and worthy of protection. In line with this logic, it should go without saying that a response with the same conviction and urgency should be expected from the University when the security of undocumented students and community members is in jeopardy. As we see the Trump Administration's erratic behavior continuously coupled with a conviction to terrorize immigrant communities, our energy and efforts are needed now. We cannot wait for the next direct attack to come; we must act proactively and build long-lasting systems that can support our undocumented community members now and always.

Although the University of Chicago claims to be committed to creating a diverse and inclusive campus, as mentioned in the "No-Barriers" program statement, the University does not sufficiently use its influence and resources to protect undocumented students. Currently, the school provides very limited and inaccessible programming. Most of the programs are consolidated under the Center for College Student Success (CCSS), the Center for Identity and Inclusion, and Student Support Services. We commend SSS for hosting its bi-weekly Butterfly Support Group events and also applaud the Undocumented Student Ally Training sessions, but these programs, without additional measures, place the responsibility of supporting and protecting undocumented and immigrant communities almost solely on fellow students.

From the University we have seen statements, amicus briefs, and a brief statement explaining that UCPD will not cooperate with immigration enforcement unless legally required. Although it could help fund more accessible and comprehensive programming, the University forgoes its responsibility to do so. The SSS hosts a single annual “Know Your Rights” workshop. Also, although the University states that it has hosted legal counseling sessions in the past, it is unclear whether they are annual events or if students can sign up for them as necessary. These actions are simply insufficient since there are students who would greatly benefit from the workshop and legal counseling sessions but are unable to attend. The University cannot be absolved from its duty to create long-lasting systems and programs that create a safe environment for its students and staff members. It is imperative for us to demand that the University of Chicago put its resources to use to create a safe environment for all of its students to study and for all of its staff to continue their valuable work regardless of immigration status. The University of Chicago can and must do far more.

In 2016, when DACA recipients faced great uncertainty, many other college institutions took action to help vulnerable students by publicly declaring themselves sanctuary campuses and implementing programs that create a stable home and workplace for their communities. The University of Chicago has neglected to publicly call itself a sanctuary campus in the past simply because it is not a “well-defined” term—despite having already implemented several policies that make it akin to these official sanctuary campuses. However, as Wesleyan’s president stated in 2016 in response to these concerns: “the far greater danger is to not send an indication to the [administration] that we would not cooperate with mass deportation.” The University has full authority over defining what it means to be a sanctuary campus. To support a movement is not to support it in the shadows. The University of Chicago must use its position as a prestigious institution to further pressure other universities to advance the long-term mission of protecting all immigrant community members.

In order to truly make the University of Chicago a welcoming and safe environment to community members, we demand the following programs and actions:

1. Schools and universities can define the boundaries of campus broadly, and courts have held that students in dormitories and in some other spaces enjoy the Fourth Amendment protections of a private home. However, the level of privacy protections on other areas of campus is not as clear cut. For this reason, we believe the University of Chicago must make a map of campus spaces with corresponding legal protections from immigration enforcement agencies so undocumented community members can better understand where safest spaces are located.
2. According to the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA), unless a judicial order or subpoena is issued, universities are generally prohibited from disclosing information contained in a student’s education records to a third party without the student’s written consent. Colleges and universities must provide an annual notice of each student’s rights under FERPA, including how they define the terms “school official” and “legitimate educational interest” for the purposes of information disclosure. This is of particular importance to undocumented students. However, FERPA does not mandate a method for publicizing these rights to students. Thus, we urge the University to publicly release a policy explicitly explaining how FERPA applies to undocumented students.

3. Protecting undocumented community members is a community effort. We firmly believe that the University should have a written policy on interactions with immigration enforcement agencies for faculty, staff and administrators to follow. A good example is Harvard's policy, which clearly states that if an administrator receives a subpoena for student information, the administrator must immediately contact the Office of the General Counsel and attempt to notify the student. The administrator is not allowed to release any information until the Office of the General Counsel has reviewed the subpoena and confirmed its validity. We believe this policy could be improved by implementing a similar procedure when a warrant is involved. The University can and must create and publicly release a clear policy regarding how faculty, staff and administrators should deal with interactions with immigration enforcement agencies.
4. We further note that a public clarification of FERPA in regards to undocumented students, a map and a clear campus policy on their own are not sufficient. For this reason, we demand that the University of Chicago mandate and provide training for faculty, staff and administrators on the aforementioned map, FERPA clarification and campus policies so they are prepared in the event of any interaction or confrontation with immigration enforcement agencies.
5. As for other community members, we demand that the University of Chicago hold several Know Your Rights workshops throughout the year and include explanations of the aforementioned map, FERPA clarification and campus policies.
6. We also affirm that a workshop is not enough to meet the needs of the University of Chicago community. The University has facilitated individual pro bono sessions with law firms in the past, and must commit to facilitating pro bono sessions with law firms for immigrant community members throughout the year.
7. Additionally, we recognize that ICE is inherently a destructive force and therefore must be abolished. For this reason, we demand that the University of Chicago:
  - a. divests and cuts off any ties with ICE. This includes prohibiting University resources from being used to conduct research for ICE, divesting from ICE, and halting all relationships between the university and ICE;
  - b. cuts any and all ties with groups and corporations that work with ICE; and
  - c. stops allowing recruitment on campus for and divests from any corporations that have contracts with ICE or other forms of policing, surveillance, detention, etc.
8. Lastly, the University of Chicago must use its position as a prestigious institution to further pressure other universities to advance the long-term mission of protecting all immigrant community members. Thus, we unequivocally demand that the University of Chicago officially declare itself a sanctuary campus once and for all.

We need allies in our mission to stand up against xenophobic policies that threaten the futures of valuable members of our community. We invite you to sign this petition and support our mission to create safe campuses for all community members.
