- Date your best friend
- Secretly be friends with your ex

- Do you stay with your significant other or leave them for your ex?

Taro Ice Cream (Purple) - Generation Two:

You're the perfect child, and it's hard to live up to that. You've got a lot of feelings that you get out in writing. When you finally pursue a career in writing, you meet someone who seems too good to be true. Unfortunately, they were and now that the honeymoon phase has ended, you fight all the time. You meet someone who could possibly treat you better. Do you leave your significant other? Maybe you stay because it's what you're used to? Maybe you cheat on them because you don't know how to end it?

- Do you continue the party life or become a real parent?

Lemon Square (Yellow) - Generation Seven:

Whether your parents did or didn't try with you, you could never tell, because their definition of caring for and loving someone was much different from your own. As soon as you could get out, you packed up and left. You were happier, and you even met someone who made you feel loved. All at once, everything happened so fast; you moved in together, got married, and you bought a house that you fill with children. You feel happy, but you're always paranoid that your spouse isn't. Do you think they're cheating on you?

Traits: Active, Paranoid, Jealous
