

Welcome to the Queen's Gallery here at Buckingham Palace. The Queen's Gallery is in one of a number of places where we display the Royal Collection. But what is the Royal Collection?

Well, it's pretty much everything and anything that you can think of that would be inside a Palace or a Castle; the official residences of Her Majesty the Queen.

So they include Buckingham Palace, the palace of Holyrood House up in Edinburgh, and, of course, Windsor Castle. And we're talking about paintings, we're talking about ceramics and we're talking about furniture.

Here we are at one of the exhibitions called Masterpieces of Buckingham Palace. And on display, we have a number of pictures that also feature on the LGfL website and Royal Collection Trust and LGfL have worked together for a number of years across different exhibitions and we feature all sorts of different paintings and works of art from across those exhibitions. So paintings from this exhibition, which is called Masterpieces from Buckingham Palace, and from past exhibitions that we've held here in the Queen's Gallery feature on the LGfL website as high resolution images for you to download.

And this is a result of a partnership that LGfL and Royal Collection Trust have had in place for a number of years. And hopefully you'll be interested to go and have a look and download them for use in your classroom.