

Condition to release information

Ten out of the twelve recruited human subjects are students at McMaster; and they would not like to share their names unless there is a promise not to reveal their names to McMaster administration (please contact the author for more information). Once a signed consent is granted from the individual, the subjects' names and their contact information will be sent. Breaking the aforementioned consent will result in filing a lawsuit against the individual. The individual must be an affiliated person working at a verified academic institution, and the request must be sent from an institutional email address directly to the author.
