

Les Étoiles Nocturnes

The Night Stars

Born in the heart of Paris- Émilienne "Mili-bug" Flambagio, grew up learning the world of organized crime.

Émilienne "Mili-bug" Flambagio

From a troubled and controlling family and of small stature, at a young age she became obsessed with bugs, her parents hated bugs. She started to rebel and was introduced by an old boy-friend to the infamous Les Frères Cartier, she was instantly drawn to the life.

Taking unnecessary risks setting herself apart from the group, she was caught in a bank robbery gone wrong.

Forced to flee France, she took up refuge with her cousin Susan in New York. Susan a prominent Super Car Saleswoman with a fledgling business, Caboose Super Cars. She made herself an indispensable assistant creating advertisements, arranging car shows and creating catalogs, but the world of organized crime beckoned, and she soon reestablished herself with the NYC chapter of the Les Frères Cartier, operating out of the Grand Lyon Capital-restaurant. She pledged loyalty.

Grand Lyon Capital

After becoming associated once again, learning that her estranged cousin Maurice worked at the restaurant, she quickly rose up the ranks, benefiting largely from the fortune amassed from Caboose Super Cars. Dealing large quantities of imported Heroin from the golden triangle. She drove fast Cars, wore the most fashionable clothing and developed a beloved rapport with the other woman working at the restaurant.

Before long, she learned of her cousin's association with the feared *Lucchese Crime Family, the most prominent and most powerful organized crime syndicate and of a peculiar Japanese man with a personal vendetta, a man that for unknown reasons, who was trying to hunt and kill her beloved cousin.

Minamoto

As an act of vengeance. This Japanese man known as Minamoto, a samurai warrior, purchased Mili-bug from Maurice and the Les Frères Cartier. Intent on making her his wife. Mili-bug, now without a home and separated from her cousin, sought refuge in the night. Spending time observing the stars with her former female french compatriots. Knowing she had nowhere to go.

After some time passed, she developed a great relationship with the group, she missed her life in crime and having become accustomed to a certain lifestyle. She convinced them, and they started doing petty crimes, stealing cars, robbing people, operating exclusively at night. They became a known street gang and whom she decided would be called Les Étoiles Nocturnes or 'the Night Stars' from the time they spent staring at the stars.

Minamoto, knowing of Mili's displeasure, decided to give Mili a chance, taking her around the city, spoiling her and learning about each other's story, they fell in love. Helping him deal with his alcoholism, shame and dishonor of not killing Susan- a serious conflict between them. Minamoto agreed she could see her cousin, and they both agreed not to discuss it. In return Minamoto would give his blessing and take the Les Étoiles Nocturne out in the dark of night and teach them how to blend in with the shadows and the way of the samurai and the quest for honor.

After reconnecting with her cousin, Mili explained to her cousin about the Street Gang. Susan was initially outraged but grateful for the help with Caboose Super Cars. Put her in contact with important people within the Lucchese Crime Family, allowing her to take control of a real piece of the city and a lucrative drug racket.
