

Angelo Dolcetto

Age: 19

Birthdate: July 25, 1982

Blood Type: O-

Gender/Pronouns: Transgender Male- He/Him

Sexuality: demisexual, male leaning

Ethnicity: Italian

Nationality: Italian

Religion: N/A

Species: Human

Affiliation: Naples Police Officer

Appearance

Height:

5'5

Important Details/Features:

The two curls on the sides of his head will always look somewhat like two little devil horns. This is partially intentional on his part and partially just how his curls like to lay.

He is completely covered in freckles. They're most concentrated on his cheeks and shoulders, but he has a dusting of them all over.

He paints his own nails, and his favorite polish is actually wine red in spite of the image. He's also intersex, and isn't really shy about the fact since it just is what it is. He just doesn't like that his documents had the female gender marker until he figured out how to amend them.

Likes:

Red Rooibos tea, Pet Shop Boys (the band), quiet evenings

Dislikes:

Conflict, gang violence, things (foods, drinks, scents) that are too sweet

Fears:

He has imposter syndrome, and fears that people will find out that he's a "fraud" since he feels that his accomplishments and success, though 100% earned through his own very real hard work and dedication, were actually due to luck, having tricked people, or other external factors. He is also afraid that if he's ever "too happy" that something bad will happen since he has the irrational belief that the universe has to balance itself, that people who are incredibly happy and have something really good happen to them must also see horrible misfortune eventually in order to pay for that happiness.

Hobbies:

He's a pretty talented tailor and clothing designer even if it's only for himself. He likes to take evening walks as well as read in the park during breaks in his shifts during the day.

Personality:

He's usually a fairly sweet sort of guy, living up to his name to an extent. He's also usually pretty honest and believes that most people are good, it's just their circumstances that make them act a certain way. Though, he also does believe that there are people who cannot be redeemed, and are too far gone. He's rather patient with people as well usually, but there are some things that will just set him off (trying to hurt him or others mainly). Once his fuse runs out, though, he will explode. He can act quite anxious around conflict though, and his timidity is something his fellow officers give him a hard time about. (It's unknown if that's just a facade or if he's genuinely afraid.) He doesn't want to hurt people. However, he does get results

History:

Angelo never really knew his biological parents since he was given up for adoption. However, it doesn't really bother him (unless he wants to know their medical history). He was raised in Sicily in a coastal town. His adoptive parents weren't able to have children of their own, but still really wanted to be parents. He grew up comfortably with their wealth with little idea of where it came from. It didn't matter until he was in his teenage years when he learned that his adoptive father was working with some not so great people as a member of a gang. He heard this information from an argument between his adoptive parents at night when he should have been asleep. His adoptive parents separated after that, and his mother took him to the mainland to live with her and her family in Venice. It was rather difficult for him to make new friends at first since he was always a rather shy and timid child. Once he opened up more in high school and joined the theater club, however, he just came alive and became rather popular. After graduation, he decided to become a police officer, and ended up being transferred down to Naples. He was assigned to work with his partner Gio, and the two became decently close friends. However, on a patrol, something went awry due to an accident, and this led Angelo to get pierced in the chest by a stand arrow. He landed in the hospital after, since his partner was quite concerned. He ended up developing a horrible fever from a disease the hospital didn't recognize, nearly dying until he managed to fight it off after several days.

Stand

Stand name:

Animal Impulses

(Namesake: Animal Impulses- IAMX)

His stand manifests as him transforming into a wolf-like creature that stands at 8ft tall when upright. It's quite painful, but it's gotten less and less painful each time.

Abilities.

Main Ability: Rapid Adaptation

The stand allows his physiology to adapt to environmental stressors in seconds whether it be from temperature extremes that would kill someone, high or low humidity, adapting to breathe or exist with high or low oxygen, adapting to pressure changes, being to breathe underwater or above, etc. This leads him to sometimes forget his coat in the middle of winter when he's human in appearance since this ability is always on. Non-stand users are able to actually see him as a giant wolf-like creature, and it's caused alarm in the past. They just see him as an animal.

High speed (he can run on all fours at 70mph), high durability, an extreme bite force that is equivalent to a saltwater crocodile's, strong bones to compensate, increased physical strength (like going up against a bear), nightvision, dog-like hearing and sense of smell.

The downside is that he needs frequent snacks or he gets really sleepy.

When his stand adapts to cold temperatures, the fur becomes white which, in turn, makes Dolcetto's hair white for a bit...It's always fun to explain that in the winter time. He usually just dyes it back to its usual color even if it looks bad when his stand is manifested.

Rules

Basically all I ask is to be a decent person.

I'm 28 years old, so do with that what you will.

No smut will be posted on the timeline, but sensitive topics within the source media may be explored (such as: gore mainly, manipulation, toxic relationships, body horror, violence, drinking, drugs, period typical issues, etc. since the IP is fairly mature at times). So, viewer discretion is heavily advised, especially for any minors. I am not responsible for who curates the content you choose to see.

Semi-selective: I am going to be fairly open with rping with others, but I will be semi-selective in who I follow back and interact with. Some posts will be open, some will be mutuals only.

I won't rp anything nsfw with anyone under 18, mun or muse, who I have not established a relationship with (I need to know you well enough as a mun to be comfortable with any nsfw stuff). I will be checking ages. However, I am not really into nsfw role-plays so much anyway. Anything too much will be taken to the DMs or Discord.

Anything to do with children and animals in a naughty manner is right out (Just ew. Be normal).

I will not tolerate homophobia, transphobia, ableism, racism, or any kind of bigotry from admins. I understand that mun doesn't equal the muse. But, if I see anything of the sort posted ooc, I'm just gonna block. I am, however, open to such things from characters (in-character toxicity and such is fine), but realize that there will be reasonable in-character consequences. So, be aware of this.

Anything like smut (which will be rare since I am ace and not really into writing it) will be taken to DMs or discord and only be considered with adult muns and muses.

Please do not godmod or metagame.

Please don't assume you know personal facts about my muse and that our muses know each other unless we plan it out and discuss it. Knowing things like his position is fine if relevant. Like, if they're technically coworkers for instance.

Don't play my muse for me or control him. If something like mind control is used, for instance, because of a stand ability or otherwise, write what you want him to do on your end and I'll write it out on my end.

I will be using dice for various things as well like it's D&D with stats taken into account. Mainly to keep things fair.

I am also open to time travel to different parts since the show spans multiple centuries.