NATIONAL CONGRESSIONAL CONTACT MASTER CHART

Nationwide HOA, Condominium, and Community-Association Homeowner Rights, Oversight, and Reform

119th Congress • 2nd Session • Information checked October 30, 2026

Purpose and national scope

This is a nationwide congressional outreach chart—not a Colorado-only contact list. The request seeks federal oversight and investigation of recurring, multi-state homeowner and resident property-rights concerns, the roles of industry advocacy and funding, claims of homeowner representation, federal and state oversight gaps, and the need for enforceable minimum protections. Colorado contacts are included only as one part of a broader national strategy.

- Use the same core Congressional Brief and Full Congressional Request across the country, with a short cover letter tailored to each committee's jurisdiction.
- Invite homeowners and residents in every state to contact their own U.S. Senators and House Representative and submit documented local examples. Ask them to identify the state, association type, dates, agencies contacted, records available, and outcome.
- Use multi-state examples as investigative leads—not as proof that every association, state, agency, or industry participant acts in the same way.
- Ask committees to examine records, funding, representation, policy influence, agency actions and non-actions, and possible legislative remedies. Do not state that lobbying chronology or financial relationships alone prove improper conduct.

D. National outreach beyond committee leadership

- Every U.S. Senator: Ask both Senators in each state to review the national request, identify the appropriate committee or subcommittee staff, and support oversight or a referral.
- Every U.S. House district: Ask the district's Representative to review the request and forward it to the relevant committee offices. Constituents should contact their own Representative; advocates may also contact committee members from other states because the issue is national.

- Committee members from states represented in the evidence: Include members whose states have documented examples, while making clear that state examples are illustrative investigative leads and not a claim that the committee member has responsibility for the local dispute.
- Bipartisan outreach: Send the request to both the Chair and Ranking Member of each priority committee. The purpose is institutional review, not support for one party or one individual.
- Relevant federal agencies: In parallel with congressional outreach, preserve and organize agency correspondence and records concerning GAO, FinCEN, Treasury, HUD, FHA, VA, DOJ, FTC, IRS, and relevant state offices. Congressional requests should ask what each agency received, reviewed, did, declined, referred, and why.

E. Recommended order and package

Stage	Recipients	Materials / request
1 — Broad oversight	House Oversight and Government Reform; Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs; Senate PSI	Full Congressional Brief + Full Congressional Request + evidence index. Ask for staff review, written acknowledgment, referral, and consideration of investigation/hearings.
2 — Housing and financial matters	House Financial Services; Senate Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs	Same core package, with a cover note identifying Treasury, FinCEN, HUD, FHA, insurance, housing finance, and funding/industry questions.
3 — Legal and accountability matters	House Judiciary; Senate Judiciary	Same core package, with a cover note identifying federal legal protections, civil-rights/access-to-justice questions, and DOJ-related records within jurisdiction.
4 — Narrow subject referrals	Energy and Commerce / Senate Commerce; Ways and Means / Senate Finance; Veterans' Affairs	Send only the portions supported by evidence and relevant to the committee's jurisdiction. Avoid implying these committees have jurisdiction over all HOA disputes.
5 — Nationwide constituent outreach	All states: Senators and House Representatives	Provide the same national summary and invite documented state-specific submissions. Track each state and district separately.

F. What every cover letter should request

- Written acknowledgment of receipt and the date received.
- The name and contact information of the staff member assigned to review the submission, if one is assigned.
- Referral to the appropriate committee, subcommittee, investigative counsel, or agency where the receiving office lacks jurisdiction.
- Identification of the records or additional evidence the office would need to assess the request.
- Consideration of agency record requests, briefings, hearings, testimony, interviews, or other oversight steps within the committee's authority.
- A response explaining whether the office will review, refer, or take no action, to the extent it can provide that information.

Important jurisdiction and accuracy notes

- This chart identifies potential congressional recipients based on committee subject areas; it does not state that any committee has agreed to investigate or that every issue falls within its jurisdiction.
- HOA and condominium governance is substantially governed by state law. The congressional request should focus on federal agency oversight, federal housing/financial/consumer/civil-rights interests, interstate industry advocacy and funding transparency, and federal minimum protections that Congress may lawfully establish.
- Do not describe CAI, an agency, a committee, or an industry participant as having committed wrongdoing unless the evidence establishes that fact. Ask Congress to test claims, obtain records, trace funding and policy development, and determine whether influence or conflicts affected decisions.
- The chart is a working contact directory, not legal advice. Committee leadership and contact routes can change; confirm the official website immediately before mailing. For staff-level investigative contacts, use the committee's official contact page or call the committee office and request the staff director or counsel handling oversight/housing/financial issues.

EMAIL AND SUBMISSION-ROUTE VERIFICATION NOTE

Email addresses are included only where an official committee source publicly identifies an address for the stated purpose. A press/communications email is not treated as an appropriate destination for a congressional oversight or policy submission. Where no general email is published, the chart identifies the official webform, phone, fax, or postal route instead. The PSI general address is reproduced from an official page that contains historical contact information and should be verified by telephone before use. The Senate Veterans' Affairs address is specifically identified by the committee for Chairman Moran's committee staff/oversight communications; the Ranking Member has a separate contact route.
